Walstad, 2012-12-06 Economics is taught in some form in the secondary schools of nations throughout the world The subject is rarely taught in elementary schools and while economics courses are offered in universities the majority of students end their formal education with secondary school Thus the best opportunity for the economic education of the youth of a nation occurs in secondary schools This book examines economic education at this critical level of the educational system The teaching of economics in secondary schools varies across countries These differences occur because of history the structure of education and other national factors At the same time there are common elements in the economic education of many countries especially in content coverage This contrast between the common features and the uniqueness of economic education in secondary schools of major industrial nations exemplifies the international perspective presented in this book The international perspective is developed in the six sections of the volume The first section discusses why nations should include economics in school curricula and presents a framework for teaching economics that should have global appeal Dissension and consensus on economic issues among North American and European economists are examined in the second section The third section surveys the U S research literature on precollege economic education and assesses the current state of economics instruction in U S schools The economics curricula and educational practices in seven other nations the U K Canada Japan Germany Austria Korea and Australia are described in the fourth and fifth sections The fifth section also presents international comparisons of economic understanding based on national testing in six of those nations The sixth and final section explores the role of economic education in centrally planned economies and its effects on the transition to a market economy using Russia Bulgaria and China as case studies

Current Law Index, 1998

Social Hygiene in Twentieth Century Britain Greta Jones, 2025-04-01 In the early twentieth century a group of writers and publicists began to talk and write about social hygiene or more commonly known as the theory of eugenics By this they meant the improvement of the quality of the population by a conscious intervention in the biological laws which governed its growth development and reproduction This discussion led to the foundation of several social hygiene eugenics organisations the Eugenics Society the National Council for Mental Hygiene the Central Association for Mental Welfare the People's League of Health the New Health Society the National Institute for Industrial Psychology and several others First published in 1986 Social Hygiene in Twentieth Century Britain now with a new preface by the author suggests that they were linked by a set of interrelated ideas about health and social progress which was influential in the period from the First World War to the aftermath of the Second Its basic contention is that these groups were influenced by Social Darwinism and that they based their policies on two foundations the elimination of the unfit and the improvement of the general level of industrial and personal efficiency among the working class The book offers a critique of Foucault's theory of the development of the sciences of human life as well as relating the ideas of these groups to the social climate of British life The social management they envisaged was based on an expectation of deflation and a high level of unemployment They can thus be seen as throwing light on developments in Conservative policy on family life and the like
