Environmental Data Service, 1971 Climatological Data, 1967 Community Participation in School Management Kazuro Shibuya, 2022-09-12 Nobody denies that trust in schools is key to success in generating any educational outcomes. However, trust is often eroded resulting in conflicts, alienation and differentiation among school level stakeholders. This book analyses school based management SBM of education through the lens of relational trust in the context of Ghana, revealing how community participation in school management leads to educational outcomes. Conducting quantitative analysis of headteacher questionnaires from public basic schools and qualitative analysis of case study schools in the Akatsi South District of Ghana, Shibuya offers critical insights into building sustainable relationships between individual households and geographical school communities. He argues it is critical to highlight relational trust as an analytical tool to examine relationships between actors and factors in school management. The research finds that trust in schools is a two way mechanism and the mutuality of expectations and obligations among stakeholders is essential if children's learning outcomes are to improve. With its mixed methods approach, this book will be a valuable resource for scholars in comparative education, those in educational development and those interested in African contexts. Linguistic analyses are usually concerned with language internal processes while investigations of language external historical developments tend to disregard linguistic considerations. It is evident however that an investigation of diachronic semantics will have to consider both sides: a specific theory of meaning including a proper place for lexical semantics on the one hand and incorporate knowledge about the world and the social and cultural environment of speakers who use language as a tool for communication on the other. The collection focuses on meaning change as a topic of interdisciplinary research. Distinguished scholars in diachronic semantics, general linguistics, classical philology, philosophy of language, anthropology and history offer in depth studies of language internal and external factors of meaning change This broad range of perspectives unprecedented in research publications of recent years is a pioneering attempt to mirror the multi facetteous nature of language as a formal social cognitive cultural and historical entity The contributions each exploring the research issues methods and techniques of their particular field are directed towards a broader audience of interested readers thus enhancing interdisciplinary exchange
