Katherine Carlyle Rupert Thomson, 2015-11-05 In the late 80s Katherine Carlyle is created using IVF Stored as a frozen embryo for eight years she is then implanted in her mother and given life By the age of nineteen Katherine has lost her mother to cancer and feels her father to be an increasingly distant figure Instead of going to college she decides to disappear telling no one where she has gone What begins as an attempt to punish her father for his absence gradually becomes a testing ground of his love for her a coming to terms with the death of her mother and finally the mise en scene for a courageous leap from false empowerment to true empowerment Written in the beautifully spare lucid and cinematic prose that Thomson is known for Katherine Carlyle uses the modern techniques of IVF and cryopreservation to throw new light on the myth of origins It is a profound and moving novel about where we come from what we make of ourselves and how we are loved

Rupert Thomson Robert Duggan, Iain Robinson, Rhona Gordon, Kaye Mitchell, John McAuliffe, 2016 Rupert Thomson's innovative and unsettling writing ranges from dystopian alternative futures to meditations on crime and cultural memory and from historical fictions to explorations of contemporary gender violence The essays in this collection argue that Thomson's novels and memoir are compelling case studies in late twentieth and early twenty first century literature which engage with contemporary cultural and political preoccupations through persistently off beat and often experimental literary forms and trouble stable definitions of genre in the process With chapters focusing on borders panopticism haunting child sexual abuse shame atmosphere and intertextuality this collection offers a critical introduction to an author whose work has been overlooked by the academy for too long
