Marianela Juan Antonio Castuera Echegoyen, Mónica García-Viñó Sánchez, 1996 Marianela \(English Edition\) Benito Pérez Galdós, 2021-04-06 The sun had set After the brief interval of twilight the night fell calm and dark and in its gloomy bosom the last sounds of a sleepy world died gently away The traveller went forward on his way hastening his step as night came on the path he followed was narrow and worn by the constant tread of men and beasts and led gently up a hill on whose verdant slopes grew picturesque clumps of wild cherry trees beeches and oaks The reader perceives that we are in the north of Spain Our traveller was a man of middle age strongly built tall and broad shouldered his movements were brisk and resolute his step firm his manner somewhat rugged his eye bold and bright his pace was nimble considering that he was decidedly stout and he was the reader may at once be told though somewhat prematurely as good a soul as you may meet with anywhere He was dressed as a man in easy circumstances should be dressed for a journey in spring weather with one of those round shady hats which from their ugly shape have been nicknamed mushrooms hongo a pair of field glasses hanging to a strap and a knotted stick which when he did not use it to support his steps served to push aside the brambles when they flung their thorny branches across so as to catch his dress He presently stopped and gazing round the dim horizon he seemed vexed and puzzled He evidently was not sure of his way and was looking round for some passing native of the district who might give him such topographical information as might enable him to reach his destination I cannot be mistaken he said to himself They told me to cross the river by the stepping stones and I did so then to walk on straight on And there to my right I do in fact see that detestable town which I should call Villafangosa by reason of the enormous amount of mud that chokes the streets Well then I can but go on straight on I rather like the phrase and if I bore arms I would adopt it for my motto in order to find myself at last at the famous mines of Socartes Taken from Marianela English Edition written by Benito
