The Enemy is Within Helen Efthimiades-Keith, 2021-10-01 Efthimiadis Keith addresses questions of the historicity of the book of Judith using a more subjective definition of truth than simple fact or fiction she interprets the text through Jungian methodology as a dream of the unconscious psyche of the Jewish people true in its reflection of their collective identity at the time of the text's composition The author merges Terrence Dawson's literary theory concerning the discernment of the effective protagonist of a narrative with Jungian's method of dream interpretation to analyze the text subjectively from the effective protagonist's point of view The author then extrapolates the book's contents onto a hypothetical historical situation to contextualize the book within the Jewish identity and uses her findings to conduct objective analysis Evgenij Zamjatin Christopher

Archetype Semantics: How It Corresponds To The Concept Of "An Image." How Archetypal*

Are Images? Andrey Davydov,Olga Skorbatyuk,2017-09-16 An image is archetypal only when it is an individual value which through natural analogs allows a person to learn about himself obtain information about his individual qualities recorded in the individual structure of psyche which ultimately allows a person to legalize his own innate qualities The authors reason that logically an archetype in its traditional consideration cannot be that prototype preimage which as an initial idea determines the individual human psyche because by definition it belongs to culture it is its artifact Consequently according to existing semantics an archetype can be anything except an archetype as an idea This scientific paper examines whether semantics of an archetype in its traditional sense corresponds to the concept of an image if an image is considered in terms of a copy a duplicate can an archetype of culture be seriously considered as something that directly forms individual human psyche as a structure that appeared long before symbolism The authors think that not every image is archetypal because not every image is equal to prototype preimage as an initial idea corresponding to the concept of an archetype An image is archetypal only when it is an individual value which through natural analogues allows a person to learn about his own self and learn about his individual qualities recorded in the individual structure of psyche which as a result provides a person with a possibility to legalize his own innate qualities
