Arbitration in China Kun Fan, 2013-02-11 In the context of harmonisation of arbitration law and practice worldwide to what extent do local legal traditions still influence local arbitration practices especially at a time when non Western countries are playing an increasingly important role in international commercial and financial markets How are the new economic powers reacting to the trend towards harmonisation China provides a good case study with its historic tradition of non confrontational means of dispute resolution now confronting current trends in transnational arbitration Is China showing signs of adapting to the current trend of transnational arbitration On the other hand will Chinese legal culture influence the practice of arbitration in the rest of the world To address these challenging questions it is necessary to examine the development of arbitration in the context of China's changing cultural and legal structures Written for international business people lawyers academics and students this book gives the reader a unique insight into arbitration practice in China based on a combination of theoretical analysis and practical insights It explains contemporary arbitration in China from an interdisciplinary perspective and with a comparative approach setting Chinese arbitration in its wider social context to aid understanding of its history contemporary practice the legal obstacles to modern arbitration and possible future trends In 2011 the thesis on which this book was based was named Best Thesis in International Studies by the Swiss Network for International Studies What distinguishes this work from other books on international arbitration is its interdisciplinary perspective and comparative approach this book makes a remarkable contribution to the understanding of arbitration in China and transnational arbitration in general Academics scholars and students of international arbitration comparative studies and globalisation may all find this book stimulating It also provides useful guidance for practitioners involved or interested in arbitration in China From the Foreword by Gabrielle Kaufmann Kohler This title is included in Bloomsbury Professional's International Arbitration online service International Commercial Arbitration Simon

Greenberg, Christopher Kee, J. Romesh Weeramantry, 2011-01-17 There has been an exponential rise in the use of ICA for resolving international business disputes yet international arbitration is a scarcely regulated specialty industry International Commercial Arbitration An Asia Pacific Perspective is the first book to explain ICA topic by topic with an Asia Pacific focus Written for students and practising lawyers alike this authoritative book covers the principles of ICA thoroughly and comparatively For each issue it utilises academic writings from Asia Europe and elsewhere and draws on examples of legislation arbitration procedural rules and case law from the major Asian jurisdictions Each principle is explained with a simple statement before proceeding to more technical theoretical or comparative content Real world scenarios are employed to demonstrate actual application to practice International Commercial Arbitration is an invaluable resource that provides unique insight into real arbitral practice specific to the Asia Pacific region within a global context Arbitration in China

Sun Wei, Melanie Willems, 2015-09-24 Arbitration in China has been aligned with international norms since the enactment of the Arbitration Law in 1994. The purpose of this book is to assist practitioners by describing the law governing arbitration in China as it is currently applied to practice both domestically and internationally taking into account the regime's numerous features. Among the details affecting arbitration practice and procedure in China covered are the following: arbitration agreement as a precondition for any arbitration proceedings; finality of arbitral awards without any right of appeal procedure governing arbitral proceedings; the extent of permissible judicial review; arbitrations with a connection to Hong Kong, Macau or Taiwan; persistent involvement of local governments in arbitration; acceptance and proceedings rules on the handling of cases with foreign elements; guidelines provided in the Supreme People's Court's judicial interpretations; fees; grounds for objecting to jurisdiction; mechanisms for multi-party arbitration; interim injunctions; formation of arbitral tribunals; use of expert witnesses; enforcement of arbitral awards; and use of mediation. Although focusing predominantly on the practical effects of Arbitration Law provisions, the authors stress practice involving China's two commissions specifically addressing international matters: the China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission (CIETAC) and the Beijing Arbitration Commission (BAC). Among the numerous local commissions functioning under the Arbitration Law, special attention is paid to those in Beijing, Shanghai and Guangzhou which along with CIETAC accept the greatest number of cases with a foreign element. The book will be invaluable to corporate counsel and other practitioners dealing with Chinese companies. Scholars of comparative arbitration law will also find much here to interest them. Foreign-Related Arbitration in China

Fan Yang, 2016-03-10 This overview and analysis of current arbitration law and practice in mainland China offers critical analysis of significant Chinese arbitration law materials and key cases decided by the Supreme People's Court of the People's Republic of China (PRC). It also provides the full texts of around two hundred decisions of the Supreme People's Court of the PRC dating from 1990 to 2013 with enclosures of lower People's Courts' decisions presented in a systematic fashion. The analysis not only highlights the importance of the materials, judicial interpretations and key cases but also enables readers to read mainland Chinese statutes, judiciary interpretations and cases independently and confidently.
