Archaeology Anxiety Materiality Anxiousness Worry:

The Archaeology of Anxiety Jeffrey Fleisher, Neil Norman, 2015-12-17 Recent efforts to engage more explicitly with the interpretation of emotions in archaeology have sought new approaches and terminology to encourage archaeologists to take emotions seriously This is part of a growing awareness of the importance of senses what we see smell hear and feel in the constitution and reconstitution of past social and cultural lives Yet research on emotion in archaeology remains limited despite the fact that such states underpin many studies of socio cultural transformation The Archaeology of Anxiety draws together papers that examine the local complexities of anxiety as well as the variable stimuli class or factional struggle warfare community construction and maintenance personal turmoil and responsibilities to and relationships with the dead that may generate emotional responses of fear anxiousness worry and concern The goal of this timely volume is to present fresh research that addresses the material dimension of rites and performances related to the mitigation and negotiation of anxiety as well as the role of material culture and landscapes in constituting and even creating periods or episodes of anxiety

The Contemporary Archaeology of Emotions: Re-Framing the Past and Present Tuuli Matila, 2025-09-30 This SpringerBrief examines emotions in the past through contemporary archaeological materials The author explores this topic using the context of a former working class neighbourhood in northern Finland that existed during the Cold War era 1947 1987 Finland offers an interesting context to examine this because of the twofold emotional frames the Cold War and capitalism versus the nascent welfare state The push and pull between the values emphasizing universal care and compassion against the hardline militarisation and financial competition results in accessing different and sometimes contradictory emotions It also affords a gendered view into the past and such an angle could be attempted in the context of the deep past as well This book offers several examples on how emotions could be accessed in the deep past and draws parallels between the examples from a contemporary western country and various archaeological cultures and contexts Emotions can be a bridge to access the secrets of human behavior Such bridging is the core strength of archaeological education but rarely are emotions acknowledged in the process Lastly this book underlines the role of emotions specifically empathy in archaeological education and in destabilizing contemporary political notions on social norms and contracts

Archaeologies of the Heart Kisha Supernant, Jane Eva Baxter, Natasha Lyons, Sonya Atalay, 2020-02-13 Archaeological practice is currently shifting in response to feminist indigenous activist community based and anarchic critiques of how archaeology is practiced and how science is used to interpret the past lives of people Inspired by the calls for a different way of doing archaeology this volume presents a case here for a heart centered archaeological practice Heart centered practice emerged in care based disciplines such as nursing and various forms of therapy as a way to recognize the importance of caring for those on whom we work and as an avenue to explore how our interactions with others impacts our own emotions and heart Archaeologists are disciplined to separate mind and heart a division which harkens back to the origins of western thought The dualism between the mental and the physical is fundamental to the concept that humans can objectively study the world without being immersed in it Scientific approaches to understanding the world assume there is an objective world to be studied and that humans must remove themselves from that world in order to find the truth An archaeology of the heart rejects this dualism rather we see mind body heart and spirit as inextricable An archaeology of the heart provides a new space for thinking through an integrated responsible and grounded archaeology where there is care for the living and the dead acknowledges the need to build responsible relationships with communities and with the archaeological record and emphasize the role of rigor in how work and research is conducted The contributions bring together archaeological practitioners from across the globe in different contexts to explore how heart centered practice can impact archaeological theory methodology and research throughout the discipline
