Chich n Itz mouth of the well of the Itza was one of the great centers of civilization in prehistoric America serving between the eighth and twelfth centuries A D as a religious economic social and political capital on the Yucat n Peninsula Within the ancient city there were many natural wells or cenotes One within the ceremonial heart of the city is an impressive natural feature with vertical limestone walls enclosing a deep pool of jade green water some eighty feet below ground level This cenote which gave the city its name became a sacred shrine of Maya pilgrimage described by one post Conquest observer as similar to Jerusalem and Rome Here during the city s ascendancy and for centuries after its decline the peoples of Yucat n consulted their gods and made ritual offerings of precious objects and living victims who were thought to receive prophecies Although the well was described by Bishop Diego de Landa in the late sixteenth century its contents were not known until the early 1900s when revealed by the work of Edward H Thompson Conducting excavations for the Peabody Museum of Harvard University Thompson recovered almost thirty thousand artifacts most ceremonially broken and many beautifully preserved by burial in the deep silt at the bottom of the well The materials were sent to the Peabody Museum where they remained unexhibited for over seventy years In 1984 for the first time nearly three hundred objects of gold jade copper pottery wood copal textile and other materials from the collection were gathered into a traveling interpretive exhibition No other archaeological exhibition had previously given this glimpse into Maya ritual life because no other collection had objects such as those found in the Sacred Cenote Moreover the objects from the Cenote come from throughout Mesoamerica and lower Central America representing many artistic traditions The exhibit and this its accompanying catalog marked the first time all of the different kinds of offerings have ever been displayed together and the first time many have been published Essays by Gordon R Willey and Linnea H Wren place the Cenote of Sacrifice and the great Maya city of Chich n Itz within the larger context of Maya archaeology and history The catalog entries written by Clemency Chase Coggins describe the objects displayed in the traveling exhibition Some entries are brief descriptive statements others develop short scholarly themes bearing on the function and interpretation of specific objects Coggins introductory essay describes how the objects were collected by Thompson and how the exhibition collection has been studied to reveal the periods of Cenote ritual and the changing practices of offering to the Sacred Cenote

Personal Adornment and the Construction of Identity Hannah V. Mattson, 2021-06-09 Objects of adornment have been a subject of archaeological historical and ethnographic study for well over a century Within archaeology personal ornaments have traditionally been viewed as decorative embellishments associated with status and wealth materializations of power relations and social strategies or markers of underlying social categories such as those related to gender class and ethnic affiliation Personal Adornment and the Construction of Identity seeks to understand these artefacts not as signals of steady pre existing cultural units and relations but as important components in the active and contingent constitution of identities Drawing on contemporary scholarship on materiality and relationality in archaeological and social theory this book uses one genre of material culture items of bodily adornment to illustrate how humans and objects construct one another Providing case studies spanning 10 countries three continents and more than 9 000 years of human history the authors demonstrate the myriad and dynamic ways personal ornaments were intertwined with embodied practice and identity performativity the creation and remaking of social memories and relational collections of persons materials and practices in the past The authors careful analyses of production methods and composition curation heirlooming and reworking decorative attributes and iconography position within assemblages and depositional context illuminate the varied material and relational axes along which objects of adornment contained social value and meaning When paired with the broad temporal and geographic scope collectively represented by these studies we gain a deeper appreciation for the subtle but vital roles these items played in human lives By Design 2,1989 Gordon R. mainly focuses on the practice of taking and displaying various body parts as trophies in both North and South America. The editors and contributors, which include Native Peoples from both continents, examine the evidence and causes of Amerindian trophy taking. Additionally, they present objectively and discuss dispassionately the topic of human proclivity toward ritual violence. This book fills the gap in literature on this subject.
