Architecture Design Versus Consumerism Architecture Design Versus Consumerism:

Architecture & Design versus Consumerism Ann Thorpe, 2012-06-14 The mentality that consumerism and economic growth are cure alls is one of the biggest obstacles to real sustainability but any change seems impossible unthinkable Our contemporary paradox finds us relying for our well being on consumer driven economic growth that we actually can't afford not in environmental economic or social terms Although architecture and design have long been seen as engines for consumerism and growth increasing numbers of designers are concerned about the problems resulting from growth But designers face a paradox of their own in scenarios of sustainable consumption where people consume or build significantly less what will be left for designers to do This book informed by recent research into the viability of a steady state economy sets an agenda for addressing the designer's paradox of sustainable consumption The agenda includes ways that architecture and design can help transition us towards a new kind of economy that prioritizes real wellbeing rather than economic growth Packed with examples and illustrations the book argues that taking action or activism is an important but so far underexplored way for architects and designers to confront consumerism The first chapters explore how economic growth and consumerism shape and are shaped by the professions of architecture product and landscape design and how we can understand the problem of consumerism as four main challenges that designers are already addressing The book maps out the main issues surrounding the development of metrics that designers and others can use to measure wellbeing instead of simply measuring economic growth The second half of the book looks at how design activism works and its connection to growth and consumerist issues These chapters examine how activist practices are financed highlight five specific methods that designers use in working for social change and investigate the power of these methods The book concludes with a consideration of what design's role might be in a post growth society

Ann Thorpe, 2012 The mentality that consumerism and economic growth are cure alls is one of the biggest obstacles to real sustainability but any change seems impossible unthinkable Our contemporary paradox finds us relying for our well being on consumer driven economic growth that we actually can't afford not in environmental economic or social terms Although architecture and design have long been seen as engines for consumerism and growth increasing numbers of designers are concerned about the problems resulting from growth But designers face a paradox of their own in scenarios of sustainable consumption where people consume or build significantly less what will be left for designers to do This book informed by recent research into the viability of a steady state economy sets an agenda for addressing the designer's paradox of sustainable consumption The agenda includes ways that architecture and design can help transition us towards a new kind of economy that prioritizes real wellbeing rather than economic growth Packed with examples and illustrations the book argues that taking action or activism is an important but so far underexplored way for architects and designers to confront consumerism The first chapters explore how economic growth and consumerism shape and are shaped by the professions of architecture product and landscape design and how we can understand the problem of consumerism as four main challenges that designers are already addressing The book maps out the main issues surrounding the development of metrics that designers and others can use to measure wellbeing instead of simply measuring economic growth The second half of the book looks at how design activism works and its connection to growth and consumerist issues These chapters examine how activist practices are financed highlight five specific methods that designers use in working for social change and investigate the power of these methods The book concludes with a consideration of what design's role might be in a post growth society

Architecture and Design Versus Consumerism Ann Thorpe, 2012 Informed by recent research into the viability of a steady state economy this book sets an agenda for addressing the designer's paradox of sustainable consumption

Motivating Change: Sustainable Design and Behaviour in the Built Environment Robert Crocker, Steffen Lehmann, 2013-07-24 Today's most pressing challenges require behaviour change at many levels from the city to the individual This book focuses on the collective influences that can be seen to shape change Exploring the underlying dimensions of behaviour change in terms of consumption media social innovation and urban systems the essays in this book are from many disciplines including architecture urban design industrial design and engineering sociology psychology cultural studies waste management and public policy Aimed especially at designers and architects Motivating Change explores the diversity of current approaches to change and the multiple ways in which behaviour can be understood as an enactment of values and beliefs standards and habitual practices in daily life and more broadly in the urban environment

Questioning Architectural Judgment Steven A. Moore, Barbara B. Wilson, 2013-07-24 The book shines light on the problem of judgment particularly in the realm of architectural technics and the codes that regulate it The struggle to define sustainability and thus judge architecture through such lenses is but one dimension of the contemporary problem of judgment By providing the reader with an inherently interdisciplinary study of a particular discipline architecture it brings to the topic lenses that challenge the too frequently unexamined assumptions of the discipline By situating architecture within a broader cultural field and using case studies to dissect the issues discussed the book emphasizes that it is not simply a matter of designing better more efficient or more stringent codes to guide place making but a matter of reconstructing the boundaries of the systems to be coded The authors are winners of the EDRA Place Research Award 2014 for their work on the Green Alley Demonstration Project used in the book

The Sustainable City XII C.A. Brebbia, J.J. Sendra, 2017-12-20 Grouping a selection of papers from the 12th International Conference on Urban Regeneration and Sustainability this book refers to all aspects of urban environment and provides solutions that lead towards sustainability The series maintains its strong reputation and a substantial number of contributions have been made from a diverse range of transnational delegates resulting in a variety of topics and experiences Urban areas face a number of challenges related to reducing pollution improving main transportation and infrastructure systems and these challenges can contribute to the development of social and economic imbalances and require the development of new solutions The challenge is to manage human activities pursuing welfare and prosperity in the urban environment whilst considering the relationships between the parts and their connections with the living world The dynamics of its networks flows of energy matter people goods information and other resources are fundamental for an understanding of the evolving nature of today's cities Large cities represent a productive ground for architects engineers city planners social and political scientists able to conceive new ideas and time them according to technological advances and human requirements The multidisciplinary components of urban planning the challenges presented by the increasing size of cities the amount of resources required and the complexity of modern society are all addressed The published papers cover the following fields Urban strategies Planning development and management The community and the city Infrastructure and society Eco town planning Spatial conflicts in the city Urban transportation and planning Conservation and regeneration Architectural issues Sustainable energy and the city Environmental management Flood risk Waste management Urban air pollution Health issues Water resources Landscape planning and design Intelligent environment Planning for risk and natural hazards Waterfront development Case studies

The People, Place, and Space Reader Jen Jack Gieseeking, William Mangold, Cindi Katz, Setha Low, Susan Saegert, 2014-04-16 The People Place and Space Reader brings together the writings of scholars designers and activists from a variety of fields to make sense of the makings and meanings of the world we inhabit They help us to understand the relationships between people and the environment at all scales and to consider the active roles individuals groups and social structures play in creating the environments in which people live work and play These readings highlight the ways in which space and place are produced through large and small scale social political and economic practices and offer new ways to think about how people engage the environment in multiple and diverse ways Providing an essential resource for students of urban studies geography sociology and many other areas this book brings together important but till now widely dispersed writings across many inter related disciplines Introductions from the editors precede each section introducing the texts demonstrating their significance and outlining the key issues surrounding the topic A companion website PeoplePlaceSpace.org extends the work even further by providing an on going series of additional reading lists that cover issues ranging from food security to foreclosure psychiatric spaces to the environments of predator animals

An Introduction to Design and Culture Penny Sparke, 2025-10-31 An Introduction to Design and Culture provides a comprehensive guide to the changing relationships between design and culture from 1900 to the present day with an emphasis on five main themes Design and consumption Design and technology The design profession Design theory Design and identities This fifth edition extends the traditional definition of design to embrace its more recent manifestations which include service design user interface design co design and sustainable design It also discusses the relationship between design and the new media and the effect of globalisation and transnationalism on design Most importantly it looks at its contents through a new lens which acknowledges the post industrial post colonial post modern and arguably post design climate of the twenty first century and the challenges that it poses Taking a broadly chronological approach Professor Sparke employs historical methods to show how these themes developed through the twentieth century and into the twenty first century and played a role within modernism post modernism and beyond Over a hundred illustrations are used throughout to demonstrate the breadth of design and examples among them design in Modern China the work of Apple Computers Ltd and design thinking are used to elaborate key ideas The new edition remains essential reading for undergraduate and postgraduate students of design studies cultural studies and visual arts
