ATMOSPHERE, CLIMATE, AND CHANGE

THOMAS E. GRAEDEL
PAUL J. CRUTZEN

Over the last century, human activity has changed the composition of the atmosphere in ways that are significant to future climate. The burning of fossil fuels has released the world's stores of carbon, raising the heat-trapping "greenhouse" gas, in particular, atmospheric carbon dioxide. Human activities have also produced other greenhouse gases, including industrial processes, deforestation, and agriculture. The book asks: "Is global warming really happening? Is it really as bad as we think it is? And if it is, what can we do about it?" The book also asks: "What are the risks of global warming? How much warming is likely? How much warming is likely to be avoided? How much warming is likely to be avoided? How much warming is likely to be avoided?"
