Idema, Beata Grant, 2020-03-23 One of the most exciting recent developments in the study of Chinese literature has been the rediscovery of an extremely rich and diverse tradition of women's writing of the imperial period 221 B C E 1911 C E Many of these writings are of considerable literary quality Others provide us with moving insights into the lives and feelings of a surprisingly diverse group of women living in Confucian China a society that perhaps more than any other is known for its patriarchal tradition Because of the burgeoning interest in the study of both premodern and modern women in China several scholarly books articles and even anthologies of women's poetry have been published in the last two decades This anthology differs from previous works by offering a glimpse of women's writings not only in poetry but in other genres as well including essays and letters drama religious writing and narrative fiction The authors have presented the selections within their respective biographical and historical contexts This comprehensive approach helps to clarify traditional Chinese ideas on the nature and function of literature as well as on the role of the woman writer Women in China from Earliest Times to the Present Robin D. Writing and Materiality in China Judith T. Zeitlin, 2020-10-26 Speaking about Chinese writing entails thinking about how writing speaks through various media In the guises of the written character and its imprints traces or ruins writing is more than textuality The goal of this volume is to consider the relationship of writing to materiality in China's literary history and to ponder the physical aspects of the production and circulation of writing To speak of the thingness of writing is to understand it as a thing in constant motion transported from one place or time to another one genre or medium to another one person or public to another Thinking about writing as the material product of a culture shifts the emphasis from the author as the creator and ultimate arbiter of a text's meaning to the editors publishers collectors and readers through whose hands a text is reshaped disseminated and given new meanings By yoking writing and materiality the contributors to this volume aim to bypass the tendency to oppose form and content words and things documents and artifacts to rethink key issues in the interpretation of Chinese literary and visual culture

McDermott, Peter Burke, 2015-10-01 This volume provides the first comparative survey of the relations between the two most active book worlds in Eurasia between 1450 and 1850 Prominent scholars in book history explore different approaches to publishing printing and book culture They discuss the extent of technology transfer and book distribution between the two regions and show how much book historians of East Asia and Europe can learn from one another by raising new questions exploring remarkable similarities and differences in these regions production distribution and consumption of books The chapters in turn show different ways of writing transnational comparative history Whereas recent problems confronting research on European books can instruct researchers on East Asian book production so can the privileged role of noncommercial publications in the East Asian textual record highlight for historians of the European book the singular contribution of commercial printing and market demands to the making of the European printed record Likewise although production growth was accompanied in both regions by a wider distribution of books woodblock technology's simplicity and mobility allowed for a shift in China of its production and distribution sites farther down the hierarchy of urban sites than was common in Europe And the different demands and consumption practices within these two regions expanding markets led to different genre preferences and uses as well as to the growth of distinctive female readerships A substantial introduction pulls the work together and the volume ends with an essay that considers how these historical developments shape the present book worlds of Eurasia This splendid volume offers expert new insight into the ways of producing financing distributing and reading printed books in early modern Europe and East Asia This is comparative history at its best which leaves us with a better understanding of each context and of the challenges common to book cultures across space and time Ann Blair author of Too Much to Know Managing Scholarly Information before the Modern Age and professor of history Harvard University This engrossing account of the history of the book by leading specialists on the European and East Asian publishing worlds takes stock of what we know and how much we still need to know about the places that books had in the lives of our early modern forebears Each chapter is masterful state of the field coverage of its subject and together they set a new standard for future studies of the book East and West Timothy Brook author of The Troubled Empire China in the Yuan and Ming Dynasties Androgyny in Late Ming and Early Qing Literature Zuyan Zhou, 2003-02-28 The frequent appearance of androgyny in Ming and Qing literature has long interested scholars of late imperial Chinese culture A flourishing economy widespread education rising individualism a prevailing hedonism all of these had contributed to the gradual disintegration of traditional gender roles in late Ming and early Qing China 1550 1750 and given rise to the phenomenon of androgyny Now Zuyan Zhou sheds new light on this important period offering a highly original and astute look at the concept of androgyny in key works of Chinese fiction and drama from the sixteenth to the eighteenth centuries The work begins with an exploration of androgyny in Chinese philosophy and Ming Qing culture Zhou proceeds to examine chronologically the appearance of androgyny in major literary writing of the time yielding novel interpretations of canonical works from The Plum in the Golden Vase through the scholar beauty romances to The Dream of the Red Chamber He traces the ascendance of the androgyny craze in the late Ming its culmination in the Ming Qing transition and its gradual phasing out after the mid Qing The study probes deviations from engendered codes of behavior both in culture and literature then focuses on two parallel areas androgyny in literary characterization and androgyny in literati identity The author concludes that androgyny in late Ming and early Qing literature is essentially the dissident literati's stance against tyrannical politics a psychological strategy to relieve anxiety over growing political inferiority The Quest for Gentility in China Daria Berg, Chloe Starr, 2007-12-07 Exploring an important feature of Chinese culture and civilization the quest for gentility over a long period of time since the seventeenth century late Ming period this book examines its meanings and how it is transmitted and is displayed in different situations
