for Children, Youth, & Families

Dr. James McPherson
discusses current
and future trends

Dr. James McPherson is the Executive Director of the National Center for Children, Youth, & Families, a research and policy organization at the University of Maryland.

As the nation's largest and oldest child abuse prevention organization, the National Center for Child Abuse and Neglect (NCCAN) has been a leading voice in the field of child abuse and neglect for over 30 years. NCCAN's mission is to prevent child abuse and neglect, and to provide support and resources for children and families who have been affected by these issues. NCCAN's work is based on the understanding that child abuse and neglect are preventable, and that the best way to prevent these issues is to provide support and resources to children and families who are at risk.

One of the most important ways that NCCAN works to prevent child abuse and neglect is through its research and policy work. NCCAN's research is based on the understanding that child abuse and neglect are preventable, and that the best way to prevent these issues is to provide support and resources to children and families who are at risk.
