Integrating Health Promotion and Mental Health Vikki Vandiver, 2009 Mental health systems are in a crucial transition period thanks to the increasing prominence of health promotion theory and a corresponding shift toward emphasizing wellness and empowerment holistic and family friendly design and empirically supported treatment Such changes demand adjustments to mental health education and re education to maintain a common ground among students specialists and providers The first book of its kind Integrating Health Promotion and Mental Health presents a seamless framework for approaching contemporary mental health problems In this informative and engaging text healthcare expert Vikki L Vandiver shows how mainstream mental health services can realistically begin to utilize health promotion principles Vandiver begins by approaching the need for mental health reform based on stakeholder perspectives and providing an overview of the history and practice of health promotion leading into a discussion of how health promotion practices can be incorporated into evidence based mental health treatments particularly those for women with co morbid health and mental health conditions and children with mental health needs Finally Vandiver offers an articulate summary and critique that sheds light on how mental health administrators can incorporate health promotion concepts and practices in their organizations in a strategic culturally competent manner Driven by theory and the most recent data Vandiver's writing is also eminently accessible the pages are rich with conceptual diagrams case examples and testimonies from mental health consumers Integrating Health Promotion and Mental Health will help specialists researchers and students alike in fields such as public health nursing social work health psychology psychiatric rehabilitation and counseling to comprehend the basics of health promotion and how they can lead to new and more effective practice models

Social Work, Social Welfare, and American Society Philip R. Popple, Leslie Leighninger, 1990

Professional Care for the Elderly Mentally Ill Liz Matthew, 2013-11-11

Services to older people with mental health problems have gone through radical change in recent years Legislation has had a profound effect by dictating how care to older people is delivered both within hospital and within the community The recent government agenda emphasizes cost effectiveness value for money and accountability This too is an important driving force in re evaluating the service although not everyone would agree with many of the proposed strategies and there are clearly different views as to the appropriateness of many of the services One thing is certain however the move towards interdisciplinary working is here to stay Not all change has been led by legislation and many innovations have been founded in the day to day practices in the care of older people with mental health problems A service of course does not become integrated merely by imposing joint working on a number of professionally based disciplines and in many ways this may not be desirable At its worst it produces duplication where people from different background are all doing the same job This is not the intention of joint working instead it should attempt to improve the quality of service by a rich mix of skills and experience from a number of related disciplines
