Crisis and Class War in Egypt Sean F. McMahon, 2016-10-15 In 2011 capital s crisis erupted in Egyptian society This eruption and subsequent politics have been misrepresented as revolutionary as the working class was and is increasingly so devalued and disempowered In Crisis and Class War in Egypt Sean F McMahon critically analyses Egypt s recent political history He argues that the so called revolution was the appearance of capital s destruction of the value of the Egyptian working class and an existential crisis for capital In response productive capital in the form of the military used disposed of and replaced its junior partners in governing first the predatory capital of the Mubarak state with the commodity capital of the Muslim Brotherhood and then commodity capital with the finance capital of the Gulf Cooperation Council These reconfigurations have been expressed in all manner of reactionary governmental arrangements including constitutions legislation and currency reform Extending today s analysis into the near future McMahon sees the war of Egyptian society intensifying and increasingly violent lives for Egyptian workers

The Politics of Education in Developing Countries Sam Hickey, Naomi Hossain, 2019-02-21 Why have many developing countries that have succeeded in expanding access to education made such limited progress on improving learning outcomes There is a growing recognition that the learning crisis constitutes a significant dimension of global inequality and also that educational outcomes in developing countries are shaped by political as well as socio economic and other factors The Politics of Education in Developing Countries focuses on how politics shapes the capacity and commitment of elites to tackle the learning crisis in six developing countries Bangladesh Cambodia Ghana Rwanda South Africa and Uganda The problem of education quality is serious across the Global South The Politics of Education in Developing Countries From Schooling to Learning deploys a new conceptual framework the domains of power approach to show how the type of political settlement shapes the level of elite commitment and state capacity to improving learning outcomes The domain of education is prone to being highly politicized as it offers an important source of both rents and legitimacy to political elites and can be central to paradigmatic elite ideas around nation building and modernity Of particular importance is the relative strength of coalitions pushing for access as against those focused on issues of higher quality education This book concludes with a discussion of entry points and strategies for thinking and working politically in relation to education quality reforms and critical commentaries Failure to Adjust

Edward Alden,2017-09-15 Americans know that something has gone wrong in this country s effort to prosper in the face of growing global economic competition The vast benefits promised by the supporters of globalization and by their own government have never materialized for most Americans This book is the story of what went wrong and how to correct the course It is a compelling history of the last four decades of US economic and trade policies that have left Americans unable to adapt to or compete in the current global marketplace Failure to Adjust argues that despite the deep partisan divisions over how best to respond to America s competitive challenges there is achievable common ground on such issues as fostering innovation overhauling tax rules to encourage investment in the United States boosting graduation rates investing in infrastructure and streamlining regulations The federal government needs to become more like U S state governments in embracing economic competitiveness as a central function of government The book presents an especially timely analysis of the trade policies of the Obama administration and discusses how America can reassert itself as the leader in setting rules for international economic competition that would spread the benefits of global trade and investment more broadly The
