Michael De Feo: Flowers Michael De Feo, 2019-04-09 As an art student in 1993 Michael De Feo drew a simple bloom that became a familiar and welcome presence in New York after he spent countless nights pasting hundreds of versions of it all over the city s building walls Twenty five years later these flowers have been sighted in more than 60 international cities His street works took a new direction in 2015 when a guerrilla art collective provided him access to the cases that protect bus shelter ads enabling him to launch a beautiful campaign of his blossoms on top of fashion ads His art has taken many forms including a substantial body of studio work inspired by Dutch 17th century paintings and

Benjamin Katz: Fleurs Erik Darragon, 2021-03 Don't forget your flowers Mr Katz In the life of a bouquet of flowers there is occasionally a photographer And in the life of a photographer there are sometimes flowers That's what happened to Benjamin Katz and perhaps it was meant to happen to him All his life he has been making portraits of artists Thousands of portraits not of thousands of artists but of a few dozen nonetheless No need to recall all their names Certainly more than you might think He discovered them before anyone else After all these years of being there after all these works he has shown that he sometimes was even the first to see to have to show he comes out of his house let's say in the morning on the day he usually buys a bunch of flowers at the market This bouquet of the day easily obtained he takes it upstairs to his home puts it in a vase puts it in his world in always the same place on the cooker and takes a picture of it The ever same photo with the same lens and as he repeats this operation he ends up fair weather or foul with a sequence of days with flowers like those calendars from the post office
