Crisostomo,2019-01-14 In the first half of the 2d millennium BCE translation occasionally depicted semantically incongruous correspondences Such cases reflect ancient scribes substantiating their virtuosity with cuneiform writing by capitalizing on phonologic graphemic semantic and other resemblances in the interlingual space These scholar scribes employed an essential scribal practice analogical hermeneutics an interpretative activity grounded in analogical reasoning and empowered by the potentiality of the cuneiform script Scribal education systematized such practices allowing scribes to utilize these habits in copying compositions and creating translations In scribal education analogical hermeneutics is exemplified in the word list Izi both in its structure and in its occasional bilingualism By examining Izi as a product of the social field of scribal education this book argues that scribes used analogical hermeneutics to cultivate their craft and establish themselves as knowledgeable scribes Within a linguistic epistemology of cuneiform scribal culture translation is a tool in the hands of a knowledgeable scholar Producing Cultural Change in Political Communities Holger

Babylonian Ceremonial Script in Its Scholarly Context Carole Roche-Hawley, 2024-03-15 Since the advent of Assyriology in the early nineteenth century it has been known that two distinct scripts were used in ancient Mesopotamian inscriptions and documents One usefully characterized as cursive was used for the ephemeral documents of daily life as well as on most library and archival texts The other was a deliberately archaizing script reserved for ceremonial use This ceremonial script of Babylonian origin contained both archaic and archaizing signs and was in productive use for over two millennia not only in Babylonia but occasionally also in Assyria and beyond Yet to date there has been no systematic study devoted specifically to this ceremonial script nor any published syllabary of the archaic and archaizing signs it employs This volume attempts to rectify this deficiency by providing a substantive introduction to Babylonian ceremonial script along with a history of its modern study and several case studies of how the script was actually used The introduction is supplemented by an edition of the paleographic lists of the second and first millennia BCE which contain pedagogical inventories of the archaic and archaizing cuneiform signs illustrating how the ceremonial script was taught learned and transmitted in scholarly contexts
