

33.2 Blood and the Lymphatic System

-  Explain the functions of blood plasma, red blood cells, white blood cells, and platelets.
-  Describe the role of the lymphatic system.
-  List three common circulatory diseases.
-  Describe the connection between cholesterol and circulatory disease.

Lesson Summary

Blood Blood has four main components:

- ▶ Plasma is a straw-colored fluid. It is about 90 percent water and 10 percent dissolved gases, salts, nutrients, enzymes, hormones, waste products, plasma proteins, cholesterol, and other important compounds. Parts of plasma help control body temperature, transport substances, and fight infection. Plasma proteins are involved in blood clotting.
- ▶ Red blood cells transport oxygen. Blood gets its red color from the iron in hemoglobin, a protein that binds oxygen in the lungs and releases it in the capillaries.
- ▶ White blood cells guard against infection, fight parasites, and attack bacteria.
- ▶ Platelets are cell fragments involved in blood clotting.

The Lymphatic System The lymphatic system is a network of vessels, nodes, and organs that collects the fluid that leaves the capillaries, “screens” it for microorganisms, and returns it to the circulatory system.

- ▶ Lymph is fluid that consists of blood components that have moved through the walls of capillaries.
- ▶ Lymph vessels transport materials and lymph nodes act as filters, trapping microorganisms, stray cancer cells, and debris.

Circulatory System Diseases Three common and serious diseases of the circulatory system are:

- ▶ Heart disease: A leading cause of heart disease is atherosclerosis, a condition in which fatty deposits called plaque build up in artery walls and eventually cause the arteries to stiffen. A heart attack occurs as heart muscle cells become damaged.
- ▶ Stroke: A clot that blocks a blood vessel in the brain may cause a stroke, which is the sudden death of brain cells when their blood supply is interrupted. A stroke can also occur if a weak vessel breaks and causes bleeding in the brain.
- ▶ High blood pressure, or hypertension, is usually defined as blood pressure higher than 140/90. Uncontrolled high blood pressure can damage the heart and blood vessels. It can also lead to heart attack, stroke, and kidney damage.

Understanding Circulatory Disease Cholesterol is a lipid that is part of animal cell membranes. It is transported in the blood primarily by two types of lipoproteins: low-density lipoprotein (LDL) and high-density lipoprotein (HDL). The liver manufactures cholesterol, but it also comes from animal product foods. High cholesterol levels, along with other risk factors, lead to atherosclerosis and higher risk of heart attack.
