Lydia Cassatt Reading The Morning Paper By Harriet Scott Chessman:

Lydia Cassatt Reading the Morning Paper Harriet Scott Chessman, 2011-01-04 Harriet Scott Chessman takes us into the world of Mary Cassatt's early Impressionist paintings through Mary's sister Lydia whom the author sees as Cassatt's most inspiring muse Chessman hauntingly brings to life Paris in 1880 with its thriving art world The novel's subtle power rises out of a sustained inquiry into art's relation to the ragged world of desire and mortality Ill with Bright's disease and conscious of her approaching death Lydia contemplates her world narrowing With the rising emotional tension between the loving sisters between one who sees and one who is seen Lydia asks moving questions about love and art's capacity to remember Chessman illuminates Cassatt's brilliant paintings and creates a compelling portrait of the brave and memorable model who inhabits them with such grace Lydia Cassatt Reading the Morning Paper includes five full color plates the entire group of paintings Mary Cassatt made of her sister

Lydia Cassatt Harriet Scott Chessman, 2003 The year is 1878 Paris is the centre of the art world and in the heart of its thriving vibrant community live two sisters Mary and Lydia Cassatt One is at the peak of her career as the other reaches her moment of greatest frailty Lydia Cassatt is dying of Bright's disease Conscious of her approaching death she contemplates the narrowing of her world with courage openness and dignity But for Mary an independent ambitious painter life is unimaginable without her beloved sister Torn apart by the idea of losing Lydia Mary embarks on a series of five paintings And as the emotional tension between the sisters rises they become unable to avoid inevitable questions about love and passion about life and death Lyrical and tender Lydia Cassatt Reading the Morning Paper is a profoundly moving unsentimental and hugely life affirming story of the immortality which both love and art can bestow

The Geography of God's Incarnation Ann Pederson, 2013-07-25 What does geography have to do with the incarnation of God and with our spiritual lives as Christians We will embark on a theological road trip that explores how geographies are at the heart of understanding of God's incarnation in the world It is no surprise to Christians that the center of the incarnation is the person of Jesus Christ God in flesh made manifest However it might be a stretch for some Christians to imagine that the promise that God has become flesh is not only in a person but also in a place in the creation Christians need to expand what incarnation means and what it means to be created in the image of God so that the scope of God's creative and redemptive action and work indeed reaches to the scope of all things from the outer reaches of space to the inner reaches of our hearts To be the creatures of God that God calls us to be requires a kind of dual citizenship within the details of our daily life attending to the needs of our neighbors simultaneously knowing we are part of a greater cosmos whose future is still unfolding

Relational Designs in Literature and the Arts, 2012-01-01 This collection focuses on texts that address the other arts from painting to photography from the stage to the screen and from avant garde experiments to mass culture Despite their diversity of object and approach the essays in Relational Designs coalesce around the argument that representations are defined by relations and dynamics rather than intrinsic features This rationale is supported by the discourses and methodologies favoured by the book's contributors their approaches offer a cross section of the intellectual and critical environment of our time The book illustrates the critical possibilities that derive from the broad range of modes of inquiry poststructuralist criticism gender studies postcolonial studies new historicism that the book's four sections bring to bear on a wealth of intermedial practices But Relational Designs compounds such critical emphases with the voice of the practitioner the book is rounded off by an interview in which a contemporary novelist discusses her attraction to the other arts in terms that extend the book's insights and bridge the gap between academic discourse and artistic practice
