1. The first step in the process of the scientific method is to ask a question. This question should be based on observation and should be something that can be tested. The next step is to form a hypothesis, which is a prediction about the answer to the question. This hypothesis should be based on what is already known about the topic. The third step is to design an experiment to test the hypothesis. This experiment should be controlled, meaning that only one variable is changed at a time. The fourth step is to collect data and analyze it. The final step is to draw a conclusion based on the data. If the data supports the hypothesis, then the hypothesis is accepted. If the data does not support the hypothesis, then the hypothesis is rejected and a new one is formed.
