Office of Program Planning,1967 Research Training in the Biomedical, Behavioral, and Clinical Research Sciences National Research Council,Policy and Global Affairs,Board on Higher Education and Workforce,Committee to Study the National Needs for Biomedical, Behavioral, and Clinical Research Personnel,2011-03-28 Comprehensive research and a highly trained workforce are essential for the improvement of health and health care both nationally and internationally During the past 40 years the National Research Services Award NRSA Program has played a large role in training the workforce responsible for dramatic advances in the understanding of various diseases and new insights that have led to more effective and targeted therapies In spite of this program the difficulty obtaining jobs after the postdoc period has discouraged many domestic students from pursuing graduate postdoc training In the United States more than 50 percent of the postdoc workforce is made up of individuals who obtained their Ph D s from other countries Indeed one can make a strong argument that the influx of highly trained and creative foreigners has contributed greatly to U S science over the past 70 years

Research Training in the Biomedical Behavioral and Clinical Research Sciences discusses a number of important issues including the job prospects for postdocs completing their training questions about the continued supply of international postdocs in an increasingly competitive world the need for equal excellent training for all graduate students who receive NIH funding and the need to increase the diversity of trainees The book recommends improvements in minority recruiting more rigorous and extensive training in the responsible conduct of research and ethics increased emphasis on career development more attention to outcomes and the requirement for incorporating more quantitative thinking in the biomedical curriculum
