1. Rollout Construction: Take a sheet of paper and cut it into rectangular strips. The size can vary, but you can fold an 8.5 by 11 paper horizontally and vertically and cut along the line. Roll the paper around a cylinder, ensuring it is snug but not too tight. Use tape to secure the paper, forming the body of the rocket. Seal one end of the paper tube by folding or taping it securely.
2. Design Decoration: Create multiple rockets with different designs. Experiment with altering the shape of the nose (conical or flat), the length of the rocket, or adding fins. Use markers or crayons to decorate and label each rocket for easy identification.
3. Launching Procedure: Find an open outdoor space, free from obstacles or people. To conduct the launches safely, hold the rocket by the non-sealed end and blow into the other carefully to launch it.
4. Flight Observations: Observe and measure the flight distance and altitude for each rocket design. Use measuring tape to determine how high and far they travel to the best of your ability. Record your observations about the flight patterns, stability, and any noticeable differences between designs.
