

Counselor: Some of the topics will be considered sensitive to other people and if I stumble about that topic and you are not comfortable talking about it then it's okay, just let me know. Then we are not going to talk about it. If you want to talk about it later then we can talk about it later. Was that okay for you?

Client: Yes, it is.

Counselor: Okay. So, who suggested that you come to see me?

Client: Well, I have had this friend for how many years and she is knowledgeable about mental health awareness. She has always been my go-to person and she told me that I might need professional help so I considered it.

Counselor: So, coming here was a favor to your friend?

Client: Yeah. Sort of.

Counselor: Okay. What prompted you to come to seek treatment now? Are there any problems or issues that might be going on in your life?

Client: Yes.

Counselor: Can you identify it?

Client: Well, I just feel kind of anxious every time I go to work.

Counselor: Where do you work and how long have you been working there?

Client: Uhm, I have been working as an assistant in a marketing company for about a year now.

Counselor: Okay, thank you for that. So, you're telling me that you feel anxious every time you go to work.

Client: Yes.

Counselor: I'm sorry you've been dealing with that. We encountered a lot of that here in the practice, so you are not alone.

Client: It's all right, I guess.

Counselor: SO, when did it start?

Client: I guess it started way back the first day of my work. I mean, I know it is normal to be nervous on the first day but it seems like it stayed in me, the anxiety was still there.

Counselor: So, you mean from the very start of your work? How bad does it get?

Client: Well, every time I feel anxious, I get sweaty, my heart is just racing and I can't interact with other people well except for work purposes, I just have to do it.
