Unnatural Voices Extreme Narration In Modern And Contemporary Fiction By Brian Richardson:

Unnatural Voices Brian Richardson, 2006 Unnatural Voices Brian Richardson, 2006 Brian Richardson presents a study that explores in depth one of the most significant aspects of late modernist avant garde and postmodern narrative. Unnatural Voices analyzes in depth the creation, fragmentation and reconstitution of experimental narrative voices that transcend familiar first and third person perspectives. Going beyond standard theories that are based in rhetoric or linguistics, this book focuses on what innovative authors actually do with narration. Richardson identifies the wide range of unusual narrators, acts of narration and dramas with the identity of the speakers in late modern avant garde and postmodern texts that have not previously been discussed in a sustained manner from a theoretical perspective. He draws attention to the more unusual practices of Conrad, Joyce and Woolf as well as the work of later authors like Beckett and recent postmodernists. Unnatural Voices chronicles the transformation of the narrator figure and the function of narration over the course of the twentieth century and provides chapters on understudied modes such as second person narration, we narration and multiperson narration. It explores a number of distinctively postmodern strategies such as unidentified interlocutors, erased events, the collapse of one voice into another and the varieties of postmodern unreliability. It offers a new view of the relations between author, implied author, narrator and audience and more significantly of the unnatural aspects of fictional narration. Finally, it offers a new model of narrative that can embrace the many non and anti-realist practices discussed throughout the book. Brian Richardson is professor of English at the University of Maryland. Unnatural Narratives - Unnatural Narratology Jan Alber, Rüdiger Heinze, 2011-09-29 In recent years the study of unnatural narratives has become an exciting new but still disparate research program in narrative theory. For the first time this collection of essays presents and discusses the new analytical tools that have so far been developed on the basis of unnatural novels, short stories and plays and extends these findings through analyses of testimonies, comics, graphic novels, films and oral narratives. Many narratives do not only mimetically reproduce the world as we know it but confront us with strange narrative worlds which rely on principles that have very little to do with the actual world around us. The essays in this collection develop new narratological tools and modeling systems which are designed to capture the strangeness and extravagance of such anti-realist narratives. Taken together the essays offer a systematic investigation of anti-mimetic techniques and strategies that relate to different narrative parameters, different media and different periods within literary history. Strange Voices in Narrative Fiction Per Krogh Hansen, Stefan Iversen, Henrik Skov Nielsen, Rolf Reitan, 2011-10-27 From its beginnings narratology has incorporated a communicative model of literary narratives considering these as simulations of natural oral acts of communication. This approach however has had some problems with accounting for the strangeness and anomalies of modern and postmodern narratives. As many skeptics have shown, not even classical realism conforms to the standard set by oral or natural storytelling. Thus an urge to confront narratology with the difficult task of reconsidering a most basic premise in its theoretical and analytical endeavors has for some time been undeniable During the 2000s Nordic narratologists have been among the most active and insistent critics of the communicative model They share a marked skepticism towards the idea of using natural narratives as a model for understanding and interpreting all kinds of narratives and for all of them the distinction of fiction is of vital importance This anthology presents a collection of new articles that deal with strange narratives narratives of the strange or more generally with the strangeness of fiction and even with some strange aspects of narratology

Unnatural Narrative Jan Alber, 2016-03-01 A talking body part a character that is simultaneously alive and dead a shape changing setting or time travel although impossible in the real world such narrative elements do appear in the storyworlds of novels short stories and plays Impossibilities of narrator character time and space are not only common in today's world of postmodernist literature but can also be found throughout the history of literature Examples include the beast fable the heroic epic the romance the eighteenth century circulation novel the Gothic novel the ghost play the fantasy narrative and the science fiction novel among others Unnatural Narrative looks at the startling and persistent presence of the impossible or the unnatural throughout British and American literary history Layering the lenses of cognitive narratology frame theory and possible worlds theory Unnatural Narrative offers a rigorous and engaging new characterization of the unnatural and what it yields for individual readers as well as literary culture Jan Alber demonstrates compelling interpretations of the unnatural in literature and shows the ways in which such unnatural phenomena become conventional in readers' minds altogether expanding our sense of the imaginable and informing new structures and genres of narrative engagement

The Storyworld Accord Erin James, 2015-07-01 Storyworlds mental models of context and environment within which characters function is a concept used to describe what happens in narrative Narratologists agree that the concept of storyworlds best captures the ecology of narrative interpretation by allowing a fuller appreciation of the organization of both space and time by recognizing reading as a process that encourages readers to compare the world of a text to other possible worlds and by highlighting the power of narrative to immerse readers in new and unfamiliar environments Focusing on the work of writers from Trinidad and Nigeria such as Sam Selvon and Ben Okri The Storyworld Accord investigates and compares the storyworlds of nonrealist and postmodern postcolonial texts to show how such narratives grapple with the often collapsed concerns of subjectivity representation and environment bringing together these narratological and ecocritical concerns via a mode that Erin James calls econarratology Arguing that postcolonial ecocriticism like ecocritical studies has tended to neglect imaginative representations of the environment in postcolonial literatures James suggests that readings of storyworlds in postcolonial texts helps narrative theorists and ecocritics better consider the ways in which culture ideologies and social and environmental issues are articulated in narrative forms and structures while also helping postcolonial scholars more fully consider the environment alongside issues of political subjectivity and sovereignty

Contemporary Second- and Third-Person Autobiographical Writing Christina Schönberger-Stepien, 2023-03-31 This book explores 21st century uses of the second and third person perspective in Anglophone autobiographical narratives by canonical male writers Through detailed readings of contemporary autobiographical works by Paul Auster Julian Barnes J M Coetzee and Salman Rushdie the study demonstrates the multiple aesthetic rhetorical and un ethical implications of the choice of narrative perspective as well as the uncommon step of articulating the self from a perspective which is not I Drawing on rhetorical narratology and autobiography theory the book engages with questions and tensions of subjectivity and relationality the interplay of distance and proximity resulting from the narrative perspective and its effects on the relationship between autobiographer text and reader In addition the book traces relevant guiding principles that the authors use to navigate their self narratives in relation to others such as questions of embodiment visibility grief ethics and politics Situating the narratives in their socio political and cultural context the book uncovers to what extent these autobiographical narratives reflect the authors position between self withdrawal and self promotion as well as their response to questions of male agency self stylisation and celebrity status

Contemporary Drift Theodore Martin, 2017-05-30 What does it mean to call something contemporary More than simply denoting what s new it speaks to how we come to know the present we re living in and how we develop a shared story about it The story of trying to understand the present is an integral yet often unnoticed part of the literature and film of our moment In Contemporary Drift Theodore Martin argues that the contemporary is not just a historical period but also a conceptual problem and he claims that contemporary genre fiction offers a much needed resource for resolving that problem Contemporary Drift combines a theoretical focus on the challenge of conceptualizing the present with a historical account of contemporary literature and film Emphasizing both the difficulty and the necessity of historicizing the contemporary the book explores how recent works of fiction depict life in an age of global capitalism postindustrialism and climate change Through new histories of the novel of manners film noir the Western detective fiction and the postapocalyptic novel Martin shows how the problem of the contemporary preoccupies a wide range of novelists and filmmakers including Zadie Smith Colson Whitehead Vikram Chandra China Mi ville Kelly Reichardt and the Coen brothers Martin argues that genre provides these artists with a formal strategy for understanding both the content and the concept of the contemporary Genre writing with its mix of old and new brings to light the complicated process by which we make sense of our present and determine what belongs to our time
