Why Are You Doing This By Jason:

This is Love? This is Safe? Michelle Smith, 2023-08-17 Sandra a timid woman doesn't see her value in this world. The multitude of assaults on her have diminished her self-worth, value, and ability to see herself as an asset. Those relationships portrayed her life as loving and safe. She knows there must be something better than the life she lived; it couldn't have been genuine love. Fear of her past has made receiving anything real seem impossible. The continuous picking at the wounds from her past keeps them open and susceptible to infecting her, which is just what Keith, her ex-husband, wants. He will do whatever it takes to keep her down, crush her spirit, and keep her where he can manipulate her. The only important thing in her life are her children, but believing she's not worth anything better has kept her from leaving the pain and suffering behind. She struggles to believe if real love exists. When she meets Jason, feelings that she has never felt before expose themselves. Letting him get close to her, she realizes how beautiful her life could be once the healing is complete. Can she trust him, or is he just like the others using her as a tool? She has never fully trusted anyone. If she continues living in the direction she's going, chances are her kids will get sucked into a life she swore they would never have to experience. She has to let go of what she knows and start trusting people. But to have never trusted before makes it complicated. But he seems different. He lights a spark in her she never knew was there. Can she be sure of the process before her, or should she stay in what she knows is real? Pain.

History Repeating Sue Langford, 2014-04-17 When Cara Andrews bumps into an old flame at a bar in town, she knows even talking to him is a mistake. She tries to leave him behind and work the amazing job she has at a top record label, but he doesn't back down. He tries to rewrite history over and over, but making her forget the past isn't something he can do. Cara is determined to move on and never repeat her history again. Leaving the past behind is a task she's determined to complete. When she meets Jason in the park, she knows it's too good to be true. She would never regret it, or would she? Jason Craig has the life that musicians dream of. He has an amazing band, two amazing daughters, and the dream tour. The only thing Jason wanted was to be happy. He didn't think it would ever be possible after his divorce until he saw a woman about to be drenched in a rainstorm. One drink and he's hooked. He could see his future in her eyes, but would she ever give a guy like him a chance? It's about never repeating history and learning from every mistake. The Divorceary Rafe Jadison, 2020-07-25 Jason lives a comfortable life. His business is successful. Both his children have wonderful futures ahead, and people think he's pretty neat. There is just one thing Jason wishes he could get rid of: his ex. When they meet for coffee, however, Jason realizes that after ten years, he wants Howard back. Luckily, Jason has a plan. For Howard, his life is as good as it gets. He's raised two great children and helped his ex build a business that provides Howard alimony. Unfortunately, his ex is also the ultimate Zen wrecker, and no amount of deep breathing can get him out of Howard's head. When Jason shows up, broke and with a hair-brained scheme to get Howard back in his life under the guise of celebrating the tenth anniversary of their divorce, Howard isn't sure if he's being insulted or wooed. But he reluctantly agrees to go back to work at the company and to allow Jason to move back home Can ten years heal old wounds Have Jason and Howard ever stopped loving each other or should they call it a day and just celebrate their divorce ary And in the end who will be the real trickster Jason Howard or that marvel we call love
