Film 2005 scholar Drew Wayne Gunn examined the history of gay detectives beginning with the first recognized gay novel The Heart in Exile which appeared in 1953. In the years since the original edition's publication hundreds of novels and short stories in this sub genre have been produced and Gunn has unearthed many additional representations previously unrecorded. In this new edition Gunn provides an overview of milestones in the development of gay detectives over the last several decades. Also included in this volume is an annotated list of novels, short stories, plays, graphic novels, comic strips, films and television series with gay detectives, gay sleuths of secondary importance and non sleuthing gay policemen. The most complete listing available including the only listing of early gay pulp novels, present day male to male romances and erotic films, this new edition brings the work up to date with publications missed in the first edition, particularly cross genre mysteries, early pulps and some hard to find volumes. The Gay Male Sleuth in Print and Film: A History and Annotated Bibliography lists all printed works in English including translations presently known to include gay detectives such as amateur sleuths, police detectives, private investigators and investigative reporters from the 1929 play Rope until the present day. It includes all films in English subtitled or dubbed from the screen version of Rope in 1948 and the launch of the independent film Spy on the Fly in 1966 through the end of 2011. Complete with two appendices, a bibliography of sources and a list of Lambda Literary Awards and indexes of titles, detectives and actors, this extensively revised and updated reference will prove invaluable to mystery collectors, researchers, aficionados of the subgenre and those devoted to GLBTQ studies.

The Illustrated London News, 1862 Poetry and the Cromwellian Protectorate Edward Holberton, 2008-08-07. The Cromwellian Protectorate was a period of innovation in poetry and drama as well as constitutional debate. This new account of the period focuses on key cultural institutions: Parliament, an embassy to Sweden, Oxford University, Cromwell's state funeral, to examine this poetry's relationship with a culture in transformation and crisis. Edward Holberton shows that the Protectorate's instabilities helped to generate lively and innovative poetry. Protectorate verse explores the fault lines of a culture which ceaselessly contested the authority of its own institutions, including the office of Protector itself. Poetry by Andrew Marvell, Edmund Waller, William Davenant and John Dryden contributed to a vibrant poetic culture which embraced diverse forms and occasions: masques for the weddings of Cromwell's daughters, diplomatic poems to Queen Christina of Sweden, naval victories, civic pageants and university anthologies in celebration of a peace treaty. Many of these texts prove difficult to align with established ideas of the political and cultural contests of the age because they become entangled with cultural institutions which could no longer be taken for granted and were in many cases transforming rapidly with far reaching historical consequences. Poetry and the Cromwellian Protectorate asks how poetry confronted questions that were complicated by institutional practices: how poets tried to square their wider cultural sympathies with their interests in a particular parliamentary or university crisis and how changes in institutions afforded poets critical insights into their society's problems and its place in the world. The readings of this book challenge previous representations of Protectorate culture as a phase of conservative backsliding or pragmatic compromise under a quasi monarchical order Protectorate verse emerges as nuanced and vital writing which looks beyond the personality of Oliver Cromwell to the tensions that shaped his power Poetry and the Cromwellian Protectorate argues that it is precisely through being contingent and compromised that these poems achieve their vitality and become so revealing
