The Quiet American and the Ugly American Clive J. Christie, 1989 The conflict in Indochina and Vietnam in the 1950s had an ideological dimension that made its politics a matter of importance as well as a subject of fascination An awareness of the communist threat dominated French literature on the Franco Vietminh war and this concern with the perils of communism undoubtedly had racial overtones thereby combining the new ideological fear of communism with the more traditional European concern with the Asian Yellow Peril It was through this concern over the spread of communism in Asia that Indochina became a front line in the Cold War and consequently attracted the attention of American writers and polemicists The Cold War dimension of the Indochina conflict was a central aspect of The Ugly American and dominated the other polemical works of Lederer and Burdick and the very important memoirs of Dr Thomas Dooley All these novels and memoirs were immensely popular and widely read in the West at the time and helped shape public consciousness about the problems of Vietnam and Asia Foreword

Austin, 2023-05-23 War Espionage and Masculinity in British

Fiction explores the masculinities represented in British works spanning more than a century. Studies of Rudyard Kipling's The Light That Failed (1891) and Erskine Childers's The Riddle of the Sands (1903) investigate masculinities from before World War I at the height of the British Empire. A discussion of R. C. Sherriff's play Journey's End takes readers to the battlefields of World War I where duty and the harsh realities of modern warfare require men to perform perhaps to die perhaps to be unmanned by shellshock. From there we see how Dorothy Sayers developed the character of Peter Wimsey as a model of masculinity both strong and successful despite his own shellshock in the years between the world wars. Graham Greene's The Heart of the Matter (1948) and The Quiet American (1955) show masculinities shaken and questioning their roles and their country's after neither world war ended all wars and the Empire rapidly lost ground. Two chapters on The Innocent (1990) Ian McEwan's fictional account of a real collaboration between Great Britain and the United States to build a tunnel that would allow them to spy on the Soviet Union dig deeply into the 1950's Cold War to examine the fictional masculinity of the British protagonist and the real world and fictional masculinities projected by the countries involved. Explorations of Ian Fleming's Casino Royale (1953) and The Living Daylights (1962) continue the Cold War theme. Discussion of the latter film shows a confident infallible masculinity optimistic at the prospect of glasnost and the potential end of Cold War hostilities. John le Carré's The Night Manager (1993) and its television adaptation take espionage past the Cold War. The final chapter on Ian McEwan's Saturday (2005) shows one man's reaction to 9/11.
