A Weary Road Mark Osborne Humphries, 2018-01-01 More than 16 000 Canadian soldiers suffered from shell shock during the Great War of 1914 to 1918 Despite significant interest from historians we still know relatively little about how it was experienced diagnosed treated and managed in the frontline trenches in the Canadian and British forces How did soldiers relate to suffering comrades Did large numbers of shell shock cases affect the outcome of important battles Was frontline psychiatric treatment as effective as many experts claimed after the war Were Canadians treated any differently than other Commonwealth soldiers A Weary Road is the first comprehensive study to address these important questions Author Mark Osborne Humphries uses research from Canadian British and Australian archives including hundreds of newly available hospital records and patient medical files to provide a history of war trauma as it was experienced treated and managed by ordinary soldiers

Changing War Gary Sheffield, Peter Gray, 2013-10-24 In 1918 the British Expeditionary Force BEF played a critical role in defeating the German army and thus winning the First World War

This Hundred Days campaign August to November 1918 was the greatest series of land victories in British military history 1918 also saw the creation of the Royal Air Force the world's first independent air service from the Royal Flying Corps and the Royal Naval Air Service Until recently British histories of the First World War have tended to concentrate on the earlier battles of 1916 and 1917 and often underplayed this vitally important period Changing War fills this significant gap in our knowledge by providing in depth examinations of key aspects of the operations of the British Army the Royal Air Force and its antecedents in the climactic year of the First World War Written by a group of established historians and emerging scholars it sheds light not only on 1918 but on the revolutionary changes in warfare that took place at that time The

Ethnographer's Eye Anna Grimshaw, 2001-04-30 Grimshaw's exploration of the role of vision within modern anthropology engages with current debates about ocularcentism investigating the relationship between vision and knowledge in ethnographic enquiry Using John Berger's notion of ways of seeing the author argues that vision operates differently as a technique and theory of knowledge within the discipline In the first part of the book she examines contrasting visions at work in the so called classical British school reassessing the legacy of Rivers Malinowski and Radcliffe Brown through the lens of early modern art and cinema In the second part of the book the changing relationship between vision and knowledge is explored through the anthropology of Jean Rouch David and Judith MacDougall and Melissa Llewelyn Davies Vision is foregrounded in the work of these contemporary ethnographers focusing more general questions about technique and epistemology whether image based media are used or not in ethnographic enquiry Transactions of the Royal

a variety of perspectives on mental trauma in war medicine culture and society in modern European and American history Its primary goals are to provide a generous sampling of the best of the historical scholarship about trauma to indicate the empirical analytical and methodological scope of this work and to present some of the conceptual and methodological issues inherent in writing about the subject The book operates on the premise that the historical humanities have something crucially important to say about trauma its essays may be read in part as attempts to introduce a deep historical dimension into ongoing debates and controversies However it is important to stress that these essays are not simply addressed the concerns rather they reflect a shared conviction that trauma opens up fresh perspectives in the study of social and cultural history
