

THE DEVIL'S ADVOCATE...

The most talked-about bestseller of 1954-1960...

Winner of the Brotherhood Award for Fiction of The National Conference of Christians and Jews...

In character as a compelling and controversial as any that ever spellbound an evening-night audience...

RONALD BLAKE WHEEDEN The Devil's Advocate—"Most interesting and one of all in his development from a hero, descending slowly into an antihero, person man who wants to know something of human love before he dies." The New Yorker

DIACONO NERONE The last one-the man from nowhere-suddenly presented to the public eye, the "Servant of God." Was he ultimately saint or sinner?

CONTESSA DE SANCTIS Worldly, brilliant, available-she was haunted by the memory of a man betrayed.

WOLFE BLACK The apocryphal painter, a stranger to commitment and a common insight between the working poet and the business figure...

ALDO MEYER The liberal Jewish doctor, whose disillusionment stemmed from the belief that men are prepared to reform themselves, that truth has a healing power of its own...

MINA SANDOZ The warm, natural woman of Calabria, Neroni had given her a sacred child-on the basis in her heart he was a saint, that he had done otherwise...

PABLO SANDOZ Son of the "Servant of God," with a past that seemed him and a future he saw dark as a vision of worldly Rome, a vision that drew him strongly to Barbara Black...

AND THE VILLAGE OF GENOVESE MONTE It betrayed Giacomo Neroni. The man looked to the "Servant of God" for material salvation...

The Devil's Advocate will be written and produced as a play on Broadway for David Selman in the summer of 1961.
