The College Board

The College Board has members drawn from the world's preeminent educational institutions to advise on college content and opportunities. Founded in 1900, the College Board was intended to prepare a way for higher education. Today, the membership consists of more than 6,000 institutions of higher learning and is dedicated to promoting excellence and equity in education. Each year, the College Board helps more than seven million students prepare for college through programs and services in college readiness and college success – including the SAT[®] and the Advanced Placement Program[®]. The organization also serves the education community through research and administrative support of students, educators, and schools. The College Board is committed to the principles of excellence and equity, and that commitment is embodied in all of its programs, services, activities, and initiatives.
