Following their divorce, both parties acknowledge that the custody arrangement for the child is not to be an ongoing concern. They intend that custody will be shared equally between both parents and they are in agreement that the child will be able to maintain a relationship with both parents and spend time with each parent. They are not attempting to restrict the child's ability to spend time with either parent. They intend that the child will be able to maintain a relationship with both parents and spend time with each parent. They are not attempting to restrict the child's ability to spend time with either parent.

It would seem as though these results support the idea that children with language impairments are not understood adequately. Such results might, for instance, be consistent with the idea that children with communication impairments are not understood as well as they are. However, these results could also be consistent with the idea that children with language impairments are not understood as well as they are.
