Between Nationalism And Europeanisation Narratives Of National Identity In Bulgaria And Macedonia:

Between Nationalism and Europeanisation Nevena Nancheva, 2015-09-25 Why do we need European integration in increasingly fragmented and antagonised European societies How can European integration relate to the national stories we carry about who we are as a nation and where we belong What to do with the national stories that tell traumatising tales of past loss and sacrifice and depict others as villains or foes Can we still claim that our national states are the most legitimate way of organising European political communities today Engaging with these big questions of European politics Nancheva's book tells a small story from the periphery of Europe It looks into two Balkan states post communist Bulgaria and Macedonia to see how their narratives of national identity have changed in the context of Europeanisation and EU membership preparations The book suggests that national identity and European integration might be more relevant than previously thought

Small States and the European Migrant Crisis Tómas Joensen, Ian Taylor, 2021-04-26 This edited book examines the experience of small states in Europe during the 2015 2016 migration crisis The contributions highlight the challenges small states and the European Union faced in addressing the massive irregular flow of migrants and refugees into Europe and the Schengen Area Small states adopted a number of coping strategies and proved relatively effective in navigating the storm they faced Externally they pursued strategies of shelter seeking hiding hedging and norm entrepreneurship while domestically they tended to securitize migration and to pursue scapegoating by blaming the EU and other states for the nature and magnitude of the crisis During this crisis management their small administrations proved resilient and flexible in their responses despite suffering from limited resources and being subject to the shifting preferences of stronger actors This book shows that independent of whether we view the migration crisis as a crisis for the European Union or Europe as a whole or how we interpret the intensity and severity of the crisis this was a crisis for small states in Europe The crisis disrupted the liberal and institutionalized order upon which small states in the region had increasingly based their policies and influence for more than 60 years

Democracy in Southern Europe Isabelle Calleja Ragonesi, 2019-02-28 How have Malta and Cyprus both EU members transitioned from colonial island states to independent democracies With the assistance of primary documentation this book traces the difficult path of these two states to becoming independent liberal democracies by using the pathway of democratization through decolonization Using socio economic and political data analysed through the microscope of political science and international relations theories Isabelle Calleja Ragonesi charts the progress of the two islands in the context of a number of four distinct phases Firstly decolonization independence and achieving the status of procedural democracies secondly post colonial independence consolidating democracy and regime breakdown thirdly sovereign nation state status and second attempts at consolidating democracy and finally attempting to reach substantive democracy status and EU membership The study of these two states is contextualized within the context of democratization in Southern Europe and the cases of Malta and Cyprus provide new insights on the region for scholars of political science and international institutions

Minority Rights and Minority Protection in Europe Timofey Agarin, Karl Cordell, 2016-03-24 In order to gain access to the EU nations must be seen to implement formal instruments that protect the rights of minorities This book examines the ways in which these tools have worked in a number of post communist states and explores the interaction of domestic and international structures that determine the application of these policies Using empirical examples and comparative cases the text explores three levels of policy making within sub state and national politics and within international agreements laws and policy blueprints This enables the authors to establish how domestic policymakers negotiate various structural factors in order to interpret rights norms and implement them long enough to gain EU accession Showing that it is necessary to focus upon the states of post communist Europe as autonomous actors and not as mere recipients of directives and initiatives from the West the book shows how underlying structural conditions allow domestic policy actors to talk the talk of rights protection without walking the walk of implementing minority rights legislation on their territories

Law, Culture and Identity in Central and Eastern Europe Cosmin Cercel, Alexandra Mercescu, Mirosław Michał Sadowski, 2023-12-01 Combining insights from comparative legal theory jurisprudence and legal history this collection examines the legal and constitutional identity of Central and Eastern Europe. Although the various countries of Central and Eastern Europe have often compared themselves to the West, the failure of these countries to engage with one another has resulted in a whole spectrum of legal identities remaining hidden. This book takes up a comparison of such identities within the region of Central and Eastern Europe and following from the prima facie similarity between the region's countries given the experience of communism and legal transfers. The book thereby illuminates through comparisons the distinct legal identities of the 16 Central and Eastern European states whilst at the same time arguing for a shared Central and Eastern European legal identity. This book will appeal to scholars and students in the area of comparative law as well as lawyers, political scientists, sociologists and historians with particular interests in Central and Eastern Europe.

Collective Memory, National Identity, and Ethnic Conflict Victor Roudometof, 2002-12-30 Roudometof provides an in-depth analysis of inter-ethnic relations in the southern Balkans. He examines the evolution of the Macedonian Question and the production of rival national narratives by Greeks, Bulgarians and Macedonians. He introduces the concept of a national narrative in order to account for the production and proliferation of different forms of collective memory among the rival nation states. Roudometof deconstructs the national narratives of the competing sides and shows the limits of these narratives and their biases. He also develops an alternative interpretation of Macedonian national formation. The contentious issue of Macedonian national minorities in the southern Balkans is examined as well as the issue of the Albanian movements toward self-determination and succession in Kosovo and western Macedonia. Roudometof argues that the Macedonian minority groups are not as numerous in the neighboring states as it is conventionally assumed. With regard to the Albanian national question, he provides a review of the post-1945 relations between Albania and Greece, the Albanians of Kosovo and the Serbs and the Albanians and Macedonians. He argues that the Albanian nationalist movements have grown out of the interaction between Albanians and their neighboring nations and ethnic groups. An important resource for scholars, students and other researchers involved with the Balkans and ethnic conflict resolution in general.

Transforming Identities in Europe Nevena Nancheva, 2012

Nationalism and Communism in Macedonia Euangelos Kōphos, 1993

Imagining Faith and Nation Nathan S. Antill, 2007

Macedonian National Identity Marija Naumoski, 2012

During the Ottoman period, Balkan collective identities existed without national content. As the historian Eric Hobsbawm has observed, the ethnicity of any people in southeastern Europe is an eternal matter of debate. Throughout the 19th century, European nationalist impulses did influence this region and some national narratives were legitimated with the establishment of new Balkan states. The Macedonian narrative was a conspicuous exception. In the interwar period, 1918-1941, Macedonian nation-building efforts were instead characterized in negative terms as the Macedonian Question and were framed as irredentist challenges to Balkan stability. The Macedonian narrative did not receive official validation until the establishment of the Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia by Josip Broz Tito in 1944 as part of the Socialist Federalist Republic Yugoslavia (SFRY). Tito's strategy for unifying a multiethnic SFRY involved sustaining a dynamic tension among the different national communities. As part of this strategy, Tito paradoxically encouraged the affirmation of a Macedonian identity as a counterweight to the influence of other ethnic groups. It was Tito's aspiration that a new Yugoslavian identity would transcend the conflicting narratives of the constituent nationalisms that the SFRY encompassed. However, with the dissolution of the SFRY in 1992 and the subsequent declarations of independence by its constituent republics, including Macedonia, the legacy of Tito's strategy ironically set the stage for a revival of competing irredentist claims. The assertions of a Great Serbia, Great Macedonia, Great Albania, etc., are legacies of Tito's failed attempt to forge a stable Yugoslavian identity. In the present day, Balkan national narratives confront each other in mutually constitutive antagonism. This paper argues that the Macedonian nation building effort is not only an unfinished project but represents a revived 21st century version of the older Macedonian Question that brings with it the potential for substantial regional conflict.

Abstract Macedonia Jane K. Cowan, 2000-12-20 Shows how transnational corporations use lobby groups to shape EU policy. New updated edition The Macedonian Conflict Loring M. Danforth, 2020-11-10. Greeks and Macedonians are presently engaged in an often heated dispute involving competing claims to a single identity. Each group asserts that they and they alone have the right to identify themselves as Macedonians. The Greek government denies the existence of a Macedonian nation and insists that all Macedonians are Greeks, while Macedonians vehemently assert their existence as a unique people. Here Loring Danforth examines the Macedonian conflict in light of contemporary theoretical work on ethnic nationalism, the construction of national identities and cultures, the invention of tradition, and the role of the state in the process of building a nation. The conflict is set in the broader context of Balkan history and in the more narrow context of the recent disintegration of Yugoslavia. Danforth focuses on the transnational dimension of the global cultural war taking place between Greeks and Macedonians both in the Balkans and in the diaspora. He analyzes two issues in particular: the struggle for human rights of the Macedonian minority in northern Greece and the campaign for international recognition of the newly independent Republic of Macedonia. The book concludes with a detailed analysis of the construction of identity at an individual level among immigrants from northern Greece who have settled in Australia, where multiculturalism is an official policy. People from the same villages, members of the same families living in the northern suburbs of Melbourne, have adopted different national identities.

Imposing Macedonia Alexandra K. Gesheva, 2003 Bulgaria and Europe Stefanos Katsikas, 2010. Bulgaria and Europe: Shifting Identities offers a unique analysis of Bulgaria's relationship with the European continent. Katsikas examines how Bulgarian historiography and literature over the centuries have created differing conceptions of Europe and, in the process, shaped the country's own shifting identity. Through his analysis, he provides the broader cultural context and historical perspective required in order to understand the country's EU accession process as well as its aftermath. This work ultimately addresses what has arguably been the key question facing Bulgaria in the post-Cold War period: Are we European?

Building Up a National Identity

Tachiaos,1990 Identity, Nationalism, and Cultural Heritage under Siege Fatme Myuhtar-May,2014-04-17 In Identity Nationalism and Cultural Heritage under Siege Fatme Myuhtar May makes a case for the recognition of Pomak heritage by presenting five stories from the past and present of the Rhodope Muslims in Bulgaria as examples of a distinct Pomak culture
The stories range from the Christianisation during the Balkan Wars of 1912 1913 and the forced communist renaming of the Pomaks in the 1970s to their fascinating wedding rituals and historic figures Each of the five narratives contains its own storyline and serves as a prominent example of Pomak heritage from the author s perspective The stories take place in the context of fervent nationalism and the ongoing censorship of Pomakness based on the claim that it is an ethnic Bulgarian not Pomak heritage
