Environmental Security in Watersheds: The Sea of Azov Viktor Lagutov,2011-10-23 Watersheds supplying crucial ecosystem services to humans seem to be a logical territorial unit to integrate societal benefits and environmental needs in order to evaluate the sustainability of natural resource use patterns Based on this belief the book is an attempt to initiate a comprehensive environmental security assessment in the basin of the Azov Sea shared by Russia and Ukraine Though the region provides a variety of essential services and plays a strategic role in national and international development plans it has been excluded from most regional environmental discussions At the same time there is an alarming degradation rate of basin freshwater ecosystems that has occurred due to overutilization of certain prioritized services e g transportation The collapse of neglected services e g fishery and freshwater supply poses serious threats to the national economies as well as the local population and to mitigate these threats priority in water management should be given to securing sustainability of the regional freshwater ecosystems In addition to the review of the current status of Azov ecosystem services the authors analyze likely future availability and challenges The relevant experience derived from basin management of the Black Sea and other similar basins is also discussed

Towards Environmental Innovation Systems K. Matthias Weber,Jens Hemmelskamp,2005-02-11 Here is a dialog among worldwide experts across disciplines concerning theoretical frameworks and practical experiences to guide research and policy towards environmental innovation systems The contributors explore new directions of research at the border of two research traditions systems of innovation and environmental innovations The text examines the four main components of environmental innovation systems conceptual foundations empirical experiences strategic approaches and experiences with policy instruments

Reducing Poverty and Sustaining the Environment David Satterthwaite,2013 A valuable contribution to our collective knowledge about governance poverty and the environment Frances Seymour World Resources Institute Detailed and realistic documentation of contemporary development and governance relationships and trends Melissa Leach Institute of Development Studies There are growing signs that development work by governments aid agencies and non government organisations ignores the fact that environmental quality matters to the poor There are also indications that some environmental work is pushing people out protection methodologies Yet recently an extensive range of project programme and policy level activities has focused attention on the important links between poverty and the environment and the benefit of entrenching these links in policy making processes at all levels The role that politics plays in all of this is of overriding importance This volume is the first to address the role of politics in environmental issues that matter to the poor through a series of case studies It describes experiences at regional national and local levels in low and middle income countries including China Tanzania Nigeria South Africa Pakistan Colombia Peru India Saint Lucia and countries in East Africa Ultimately the book demonstrates how understanding the national and local political context is crucial for addressing poverty environment issues such as environmental health access to natural resources for livelihoods and security and coping with environmental disasters The editors advocate ways in which political processes can be used to make positive changes from the perspectives of both poverty reduction and the environment
