Between Here And The Yellow Sea:

Between Here and the Yellow Sea Nic Pizzolatto, 2010-05-22 A debut collection of short fiction from this National Magazine Award in Fiction finalist Set in a variety of Southern and Midwestern landscapes from Missouri's Ha Ha Tonka State Park to a crop circle at a Minnesotan farm the stories in Between Here and the Yellow Sea excavate the ambiguous terrain of the human heart With a forceful and compassionate voice Pizzolatto finds beauty in loneliness as his characters attempt to bridge the gulfs between themselves and others past and present and sometimes between their inner and outer selves In this both heartbreaking and humorous collection we meet a base jumping samurai park ranger who parachutes off the St Louis Arch a stained glass artist who struggles over his masterpiece and learns through great loss what his true subject will be and a religious elementary school teacher who tries to understand her rebellious militant son In the title story which first appeared in the Atlantic Monthly an orphaned young man and his former high school football coach set out to kidnap the coach's daughter from Los Angeles and bring her back to east Texas With an assured poignant voice Pizzolatto places us at the crossroads of memory and desire somewhere between here and the Yellow Sea

Between Here and the Yellow Sea Nic Pizzolatto, 2015 Showcases the short stories of the creator of HBO's True detective Nic Pizzolatto From the Arctic Ocean to the Yellow Sea Julius Mendes Price, 1892 Journey made by special artist of the Illustrated London News including travels in Krasnoyarskiy Kray From the Arctic Ocean to the Yellow Sea The Narrative of a Journey, in 1890 and 1891, across Siberia, Mongolia, the Gobi Desert, and North China Julius M. Price, 2024-08-19 From the Arctic Ocean to the Yellow Sea written by Julius M Price is a riveting account of his journey across the vast and diverse landscapes of Siberia Mongolia the Gobi desert and northern China during 1890 and 1891 Price's narrative offers a detailed exploration of the cultures peoples and environments he encountered providing a unique window into a world on the brink of modernity Themes of exploration cultural exchange and human resilience permeate the book making it profoundly relevant to contemporary audiences In today's globalized world where cross cultural understanding and environmental awareness are more critical than ever Price's observations underscore the importance of empathy and respect for diverse ways of life His encounters with indigenous communities highlight the ongoing struggles for cultural preservation and autonomy resonating with modern movements advocating for indigenous rights and environmental sustainability Moreover Price's detailed descriptions of the natural landscapes he traversed bring attention to the pressing issue of climate change and environmental degradation His awe at the untouched beauty of these regions serves as a poignant reminder of what is at stake as modern society grapples with environmental crises Engagingly written and rich in historical and cultural insights From the Arctic Ocean to the Yellow Sea is not just a travelogue but a timeless narrative that speaks to the enduring human spirit and the universal quest for knowledge and understanding This book will captivate modern readers who are interested in history geography and the enduring impact of human exploration on the world

In the Yellow Sea Henry Frith, 2023-09-18 In his captivating novel In the Yellow Sea Henry Frith intricately weaves a tale of maritime adventure and human resilience set against the backdrop of the South China Sea in the late 19th century The narrative unfolds through vivid descriptions and rich character development capturing the intricate dynamics of naval exploration and the struggles of sailors facing both external adversities and internal conflicts Frith s literary style combines realism with romanticism reflecting the era s fascination with the exotic and unknown while also engaging with themes of loyalty survival and the relentless pursuit of knowledge in a rapidly changing world Henry Frith a prominent Victorian author was deeply influenced by contemporary interest in exploration and adventure literature as well as his own experiences at sea His background in maritime studies and his passion for storytelling about human endurance in face of nature s unpredictability likely inspired him to pen this engaging narrative Frith s works often resonate with the zeitgeist of his time capturing the spirit of curiosity that characterized the age of exploration In the Yellow Sea offers readers a riveting exploration of bravery and determination making it a must read for those fascinated by maritime history and adventure tales Frith s masterful prose invites readers to embark on a journey filled with peril and discovery ideal for scholars of 19th century literature and lovers of compelling storytelling alike

From the Arctic Ocean to the Yellow Sea: The Narrative of a Journey, in 1890 and 1891, Across Siberia, Mongolia, the Gobi desert, and North China Julius Mendes Price, In these prosaic days of the nineteenth century one hardly expects a revival of the adventurous expeditions which made the fame of England in the days of Frobisher and Drake As a matter of fact the world is almost too well known now for such adventures to be possible even were the leaders forthcoming and the good old buccaneering days are long past Still I could not help thinking on the day we left Gravesend for the far North East bound for a region but little known and with the uncertainty of ever reaching our destination that it must have been under somewhat similar conditions that the adventurers of old started on their perilous journeys with however this very great difference ours was not a filibustering expedition but a commonplace commercial enterprise backed up by several well to do Englishmen with absolutely nothing of the romantic about it beyond the fact of its having to traverse these wild and comparatively unknown regions before it could be successfully achieved We started from the Thames on Friday July 18 1890 in the chartered Norwegian steamer Biscaya eight hundred tons gross bound for the Yenisei River with a nondescript tentative sort of cargo consisting of a mixture of all sorts from a steam sawmill down to the latest toy for children our ultimate destination being the town of Yeniseisk which is situated some fifteen hundred miles from the mouth of this mighty river The object of the expedition was to endeavour to open a trade route between England and Siberia by means of the Kara Sea passage which was discovered by Nordenskiöld in 1875 Nothing of particular interest occurred during the first few days after we left the Thames We were so closely packed that it required some careful arrangement to get us all comfortably stowed so to speak Imagine seven men jammed into a cabin just about large enough to accommodate four and each man with the usual amount of superfluous luggage without which Englishmen could not possibly travel this baggage also stowed in the cabin and you will guess that we were packed like sardines As however no doubt even sardines get used to being packed after a time so did we and although the passage across the North Sea was about as uncomfortable a one as I ever experienced we somehow managed to settle into our respective grooves long before we sighted the coast of Norway Our party consisted of two representatives of the London Syndicate two engineers a master stevedore to unload the ship on arrival an experienced ice master who knew the Kara Sea thoroughly the captain of the Biscaya and your humble servant I don t think I ever was on board a more crowded ship Even the decks were packed with all sorts of paraphernalia including a large steam launch and several pens of live stock and so as to obviate any fear of running short of coal in the outlandish parts we were going to the fore and upper decks had over seventy tons of loose coal on them We had a head wind and a heavy sea nearly the whole way after passing Harwich where we dropped our pilot thus bidding a last farewell to Old England Off the Dogger Bank we went right through the fishing fleet which congregates there and took advantage of the opportunity to get some fresh fish a matter of no small difficulty as the men had a preposterous idea of its value they would not take money for it but actually had the effrontery to want to swop a couple of small cod a ling and a pair of soles for two bottles of whiskey and a pound of tobacco Fish is evidently dearer on the fishing ground itself than in London Whiskey however was far more valuable to us than fish so when the men saw we were not buyers on their terms they eventually came down to 1_ lb of ship tobacco value 2s 4d for the lot which was reasonable enough After passing the Dogger Bank the wind freshened very considerably towards evening and added much to the discomfort of the crowded ship in fact so badly did she roll about that not only was all our party busy feeding the fishes most of the time but our cook was also so ill that he could not attend to his duties and we all had to lend a hand in the galley as well as we could I had never been a long voyage in a wooden ship before so could hardly sleep a wink all night owing to the to me unusual noise caused by the groaning of her timbers as she pitched and tossed about It sounded not unlike what I should imagine it would be sleeping near a lot of new leather portmanteaus which were being continually shifted During the whole of the following day it was blowing big guns and the sea was so heavy that the cabin was almost dangerous to remain in owing to the sort of cannonade of packages from all sides many things being damaged There was absolutely nothing to do but sit down and wait events and meanwhile make one s self as comfortable as one could under the circumstances By the next day the gale had moderated considerably and during the morning we got our first glimpse of Norway a high rock bound coast with a dim vista of mountains in the background Shortly after a small pilot boat hove in sight evidently on the chance of a job probably taking the Biscaya for a tourist steamer wishing to pass inside the islands which is the most picturesque route though somewhat longer We had no time however to waste on scenery so although one of our party who was suffering from an attack of dysentery offered to pay the pilotage about 15 out of his own pocket if the calm water channel was followed it was at once decided to keep outside the whole way up the coast and thus get on as fast as possible more especially as the weather

Globalizing the Soybean Ines Prodöhl,2023-03-09 Globalizing the Soybean asks how the soybean conquered the West and analyzes why and how the crop gained entry into agriculture and industry in regions beyond Asia in the first half of the twentieth century Historian Ines Prodöhl describes the soybean's journey centered on three hubs Northeast China as the crop's main growing area up to the Second World War Germany to where most of the beans in the interwar period were shipped and the United States which became the leading cultivator of soy worldwide during the 1940s This book explores the German and U S adoption of the soybean being closely tied to global economic and political changes such as the two world wars and the Great Depression The attraction of the soybean to stakeholders on both sides of the Atlantic was linked to a need for cheap alternatives to butter and lard and a desire for greater quantities of meat which led to the soybean becoming a cheap resource for fat and fodder Only occasionally was it also used as food This volume is useful for anyone who is studying or interested in economic history and commodity trading in the twentieth century It is also connected to the histories of capitalism globalization imperialism and materiality The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license 100 Tales

Pace,Finn B. Jensen,2012-12-06 The limiting influence of the environment on sonar has long been recognised as a major challenge to science and technology As the area of interest shifts towards the littoral environmental influences become dominant both in time and space The manyfold challenges encompass prediction measurement assessment and adaptive responses to maximize the effectiveness of systems Although MCM and ASW activities are dominated in different ways and scales by the environment both warfare areas have had to consider the significantly changing requirements posed by operations in the littoral The fundamental scientific issues involved in developing models relating acoustics to the environment are matched in difficulty by the need for data for their validation and eventual practical use for prediction In many instances the need is for on line adaptation of systems to changing circumstances whilst other needs are for the longer term planning activities This book and the attached full color CD are the proceedings of a conference organized by the SACLANT Undersea Research Centre held at Villa Marigola Lerici Italy on 16-20 September 2002 The fundamental problems associated with environmental variability and sonar were explored at a previous SACLANTCEN conference in 1990 These problems have not gone away but on the one hand are exaggerated by the move to the littoral and on the other hand are open to treatment in new ways that advances in technology and computer power allow
