forests of two treeline ecotones is studied Some of the current emerging theories models and recent empirical evidence for the dynamics of these reciprocal interactions between climate and terrestrial microbial communities are also reviewed with particular attention to biogeochemical and ecological perspectives   Adventure Tourism David Huddart,Tim Stott,2019-10-25 This textbook presents a comprehensive overview of the environmental impacts of various types of adventure tourism and how these can be best managed This volume follows on from the authors previous textbook Outdoor Recreation Environmental Impacts and Management and continues the aim of developing a deeper understanding of how tourist numbers impact the environment and to provide practical solutions to these problems Combining their own first hand experience and research with extensive literature review the authors present several popular adventure tourism destinations from across the globe including the Arctic the Himalayas Africa Australia and Scotland as case studies Chapters cover the particular challenges faced by each region including impacts on animals and birds the spread of invasive plant species and diseases trail impacts on vegetation impacts on geological historical and archaeological sites and pollution and waste issues A discussion and evaluation of the possible management actions for minimising these impacts and how outdoor recreation tourists can be regulated concludes each chapter This practical and engaging textbook will be invaluable to students and scholars of adventure tourism and outdoor recreation as well as practitioners and managers working in the field

Response by Toyota and NHTSA to Incidents of Sudden Unintended Acceleration United States. Congress. House. Committee on Energy and Commerce. Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations,2012   Ecological Restoration: Wildfire Ecology Reference Manual Doug Knowling,2016-10-10 Fire ecology is a scientific discipline concerned with natural processes involving fire in an ecosystem and the ecological effects the interactions between fire and the abiotic and biotic components of an ecosystem and the role of fire as an ecosystem process   The Changing Alpine Treeline David R. Butler,George P. Malanson,Stephen J. Walsh,Daniel B. Fagre,2009-03-13 The alpine treeline ecotone ATE is an area of transition high on mountains where closed canopy forests from lower elevations give way to the open alpine tundra and rocky expanses above Alpine tundra is an island biome and its ecotone with forest is subject to change and like oceanic islands alpine tundra is subject to invasion or the upward advance of treeline The invasion of tundra by trees will have consequences for the tundra biome as invasion does for other island flora and fauna To examine the invasibility of tundra we take a plant s eye view wherein the local conditions become extremely important Among these local conditions we find geomorphology to be exceptionally important We concentrate on aspects of microtopography and microgeomorphology and microclimate because these are the factors that matter from the plant s eye view but we pay attention to multiple scales At coarse scales snow avalanches and debris flows are widespread and create disturbance treelines whose elevation is well below those controlled by climate At medium scales turf banked terraces create tread and riser topography that is a difficult landscape for a tree seedling to survive upon because of exposure to wind dryness and impenetrable surfaces At fine scales turf exfoliation of the fronts of turf banked risers and boulders offer microsites where tree seedlings may find shelter and are able to gain a foothold in the alpine tundra conversely however surfaces of needle ice pans and frost heaving associated with miniature patterned ground production are associated with sites inimical to seedling establishment or survival We explicitly consider how local scale processes propagate across scales into landscape patterns The objective of this book is to examine the controls on change at alpine treeline All the papers are focused on work done in Glacier National Park Montana USA Although any one place is limiting we are able to examine the alpine treeline here in some detail and an advantage is that the treeline ecotone in Glacier National Park is quite variable in itself due to the underlying variability in geomorphology at multiple scales This book will provide insights into an important ecological phenomenon with a distinctly geomorphic perspective The editors collectively have over 100 years of experience in working in geomorphology biogeography and ecology They also have each worked on research in Glacier National Park for several decades The book will be a reference for a variety of professionals and students both graduate and undergraduate with interests in Physical Geography Geomorphology Ecology and Environmental Science Because of the importance of the alpine treeline ecotone for recreation and aesthetic interests in mountain environments wildland and park managers will also use this book Subject matter geomorphology at alpine treeline Expertise of contributors each editor brings over 25 years of experience in studies of ecotones and geomorphology and collectively over 100 years of experience in Glacier National Park Changing alpine treeline examines climate change     Wildland Fire in Ecosystems ,2008 This state of knowledge review of information on relationships between wildland fire and nonnative invasive plants can assist fire managers and other land managers concerned with prevention detection and eradication or control of nonnative invasive plants The 16 chapters in this volume synthesize ecological and botanical principles regarding relationships between wildland fire and nonnative invasive plants identify the nonnative invasive species currently of greatest concern in major bioregions of the United States and describe emerging fire invasive issues in each bioregion and throughout the nation This volume can help increase understanding of plant invasions and fire and can be used in fire management and ecosystem based management planning The volume s first part summarizes fundamental concepts regarding fire effects on invasions by nonnative plants effects of plant invasions on fuels and fire regimes and use of fire to control plant invasions The second part identifies the nonnative invasive species of greatest concern and synthesizes information on the three topics covered in part one for nonnative invasives in seven major bioregions of the United States Northeast Southeast Central Interior West Southwest Coastal Northwest Coastal including Alaska and Hawaiian Islands The third part analyzes knowledge gaps regarding fire and nonnative invasive plants synthesizes information on management questions nonfire fuel treatments postfire rehabilitation and postfire monitoring summarizes key concepts described throughout the volume and discusses urgent management issues and research questions
