E. Jacobs, 2009-09-09 Our Little Roumanian Cousin Clara Vostrovsky Winlow, 2022-08-10 Our Little Roumanian Cousin is a novella by Clara Vostrovsky Winlow Winlow was an author known for weaving wholesome stories where a country or site with its cultural traditions formed a backbone for the story Excerpt The farm house at which they were staying looked attractive in its cleanliness It had been recently whitewashed and the doors and window frames painted a bright blue It was built entirely of timber The roof consisted of thin strips of wood laid closely row upon row Near the house were some fruit trees and lilac bushes and a small flower garden in which basil and gilliflowers so often mentioned in Roumanian folk songs were conspicuous Copper Coleson's Ghost Edward P. Hendrick, 2015-03-20 Example in this ebook CHAPTER I FRIENDS NEW AND OLD In the rear of a white cottage known to all residents of the town of Truesdell as the Blake homestead stands a great apple tree whose leafy boughs have afforded shade in summer and fruit in autumn to several generations of Blakes At present its hospitable branches have been converted into an out of door gymnasium by Ned Blake great grandson of old Josiah Blake from whose half eaten apple core the tree sprang some seventy years ago Six feet two inches in his socks and as wide as a door is how tradition describes old Josiah and although Ned Blake at seventeen stands less than seventy inches in his sneakers and tips the scales at a trifle less than one hundred and fifty pounds he has something of the supple strength and a goodly measure of the courage and grit that made old Josiah respected among the early settlers of Truesdell Clad in a sleeveless jersey duck trousers and sneakers Ned has just climbed a rope hand over hand to an upper limb from which he descends in a veritable cascade of cat skinning toe holding ape like swings to drop on the turf beside his friend Tommy Beals Bully stuff applauded Tommy You sure can do the monkey tricks Ned but it makes me sweat just to watch em this weather and Tommy hitched his rotund form farther into the shade of the friendly tree It would do you good to try some of them Fatty laughed Ned Come on now Here s a simple one for a starter and catching a horizontal limb above his head Ned proceeded to chin himself with first one hand then with the other and finished with a two handed hoisting swing that left him seated upon the limb Tommy Beals wagged his head in a hopeless negative Nope it can t be done he sighed Whoever drew my plans must have been thinking about ballast instead of aviation but if you ever want a good anchor for a tug of war team why just count on me All right I ll keep it in mind promised Ned but here s something you can do for a little exercise he continued dropping again to the ground I want to grind my camp axe a bit if you ll turn for me Sure I ll do it agreed Tommy good naturedly and fetching a soap box for a seat he squatted beside a heavy grindstone that stood in the shade of the tree For perhaps ten minutes the sharp skurr of steel on stone sounded on the hot August air then ceased abruptly as Ned lifted the axe from the whirling stone and tested its edge gingerly with his thumb Tommy seized the opportunity to let go his hold of the crank handle and wipe the beads of perspiration from his plump countenance Gosh it s hot he panted Ain t the old cleaver sharp yet Ned It s pretty good except for a couple of nicks replied Ned but you needn t turn any more Fatty Here comes Dave Wilbur and I ll get him to spell you Yeah I ll sure admire to watch Weary Wilbur work grinned Beals as a tall lanky youth with hands deep in his pockets turned in at the gate and strolled leisurely across the lawn I ll bet you the ice cream sodas Ned that Dave will find an alibi for any job if he sees it coming continued Tommy in a wheezy whisper I ll take that bet laughed Ned Hello Dave he exclaimed you re just in time to save Fatty s life Grab hold of that crank and turn a minute or so I ve got to grind a couple of nicks out of this axe Dave Wilbur affectionately known to his friends as Weary glanced suspiciously at the axe in Ned Blake s hands then at the perspiring face of Tommy Beals whose grin was but partly concealed by his mopping handkerchief and lastly at the heavy grindstone whose crank handle projected so invitingly toward him Sure I ll turn for you he drawled Hop up Fatty and as Beals surrendered the soap box Dave seated himself with cool deliberation To be continue in this ebook that gods moved about in divers shapes doing good or evil as their natures prompted them and that certain wise and crafty men acquired a knowledge of magic and thereby became stronger than the greatest warriors Fog to these people was the breath of an old god who lived to the eastward just beneath the rim of the sea and fire was a spirit the offspring of a god that sometimes was content to feed on the fagots cut for it cooking food for men and warming their bodies and sometimes leaped into the woods and consumed the forest for miles in an outburst of fury A man of the Beothic race named Run all day had a lodge on the River of Three Fires about half way between its mouth and Wind Lake There he lived only in the warmer months of the year At the approach of winter he followed the great herds of caribou farther inland and southward to the deeper forest and more sheltered barrens During the summer he netted and speared the salmon in the River of Three Fires feeding himself and his family on the flesh and smoking what could not be used then for their winter supply Early in October before starting on the inland journey his wife and children gathered nuts and berries while he hunted the fat caribou which were already gathering in great herds preparatory to moving to the more sheltered feeding grounds With the venison and the berries his wife Red Willow made a rough sort of pemmican Run all day was fleet of foot and strong of wind and leg It was by his speed and endurance when a boy that he had won his name He had also proved himself a warrior of prowess when occasion demanded and might have followed his father as chief of a clan but the islanders happened to be entering on a long term of peace when he grew to manhood so he took a wife from another village and journeyed away from his family His wits were not as quick as his legs and he entertained no great ambitions of distinguishing himself He was quite content to protect and provide for his family to sleep warm and eat his fill all the year round and see them do the same Of course sometimes at the tail end of a bad season provisions ran low but if any man could find game and bring it to the ground it was Run all day On a certain June evening when the west was red and dusk was settling along the edges of the woods Run all day withdrew his net of raw hide thongs from a big pool four miles above his wigwam and seated himself on the grassy bank for a few minutes rest before walking home Nine great silver fish lay beside him a respectable load even for Run all day To lessen their weight he had already slit them from throat to tail with his flint knife and tossed the entrails into the bushes He was well satisfied with his afternoon s work and sighed with contentment and a pleasant weariness
