

Documentary Research Strategy to Research Canada

Documentary Research: Ethnographic ethnography	1. Research aims  Documentary Research aims to explore and understand the experiences of individuals and groups in a particular social context. This is achieved through the collection and analysis of data from a variety of sources, including interviews, observations, and documents. The aim is to provide a detailed and nuanced understanding of the social world from the perspective of the participants themselves. 2. Research design  Documentary Research is a qualitative research approach that involves the collection and analysis of data from a variety of sources. The design is flexible and can be tailored to the specific research aims and questions. It often involves a combination of methods, such as interviews, observations, and document analysis. 3. Data collection  Documentary Research involves the collection of data from a variety of sources. This can include interviews with participants, observations of their behavior, and the analysis of documents and other textual data. The collection of data is often an iterative process, with researchers refining their questions and methods as they learn more about their participants and their context. 4. Data analysis  Documentary Research involves the analysis of the data collected to identify themes and patterns. This is often done through a process of coding, where researchers assign labels to segments of text or other data that represent specific themes or concepts. The analysis is then used to develop a narrative that explains the social world from the perspective of the participants. 5. Ethical considerations  Documentary Research involves the collection and analysis of data from individuals and groups, which raises ethical considerations. Researchers must ensure that they obtain informed consent from their participants, that they protect the confidentiality of their data, and that they avoid any harm or exploitation of their participants. Ethical considerations are a central part of the research process and must be carefully considered and addressed.
Documentary Research: Ethnographic ethnography	6. Documentary Research as a research strategy  Documentary Research is a research strategy that involves the collection and analysis of data from a variety of sources. It is a qualitative research approach that is often used to explore and understand the experiences of individuals and groups in a particular social context. The strategy is flexible and can be tailored to the specific research aims and questions. It often involves a combination of methods, such as interviews, observations, and document analysis. 7. Documentary Research as a research method  Documentary Research is a research method that involves the collection and analysis of data from a variety of sources.
