

Learning to Understand in Interethnic Communication

Peter Broeder
Tilburg University

This is a cross-linguistic and longitudinal study of language acquisition in adult migrant workers who acquire a new language without any formal instruction. These learners are in the seemingly paradoxical situation of learning to communicate in order to learn. The aim is to investigate the ways in which adult second language learners use interactions with target language speakers to learn to understand. Evidence of non-understanding - the ways it is marked and the manner of its resolution - is used to shed light on 1) the way in which the interlocutors achieve a joint resolution of understanding problems and 2) the effect on the process of acquiring the second language. The findings can be usefully applied both in language learning classrooms and in training and support for those people who are routinely involved in inter-ethnic communications.

COMMUNICATING TO LEARN A NEW LANGUAGE

The relatively young but fast growing tradition of research on second language acquisition in adults exhibits three remarkable biases:

- (1) a rather heavy Anglo-Saxon diet in which English is most commonly the source or target language (cf. Ellis, 1985: 74);
- (2) an almost exclusive focus on studies with a cross-sectional design (cf. Klein & Perdue, 1988: 5);
- (3) most commonly the subjects who provide data are students with relatively high schooling and with formal second language instruction in the context of the classroom (cf. Bremer, Broeder, Roberts, Simonot & Vasseur, 1993: 158).
