

Marshall Hall gave a speech in 1878, and described following government's ruling power, which had changed from that time.

1. How did the government's power change from 1878? What party's interests represented the government?

The Republican leadership in Congress was highly influential and approved the president's administration, even as many issues. However, this early support was not as common as it was. He had a different opinion about them.

2. How did the government and institutional order represent the Republican administration's strategy to deal with the situation? What were the other institutions described, including a different administration that they had?

He had a very different view of the government's power and the government's role in the government's administration. The government's role in the government's administration was a very different one.
