Orientalism and Reverse Orientalism in Literature and Film Sharmani Patricia Gabriel, Bernard Wilson, 2021-06-17 Acknowledging the significance of Edward Said's Orientalism for contemporary discourse, the contributors to this volume deconstruct, rearrange and challenge elements of his thesis, looking at the new conditions and opportunities offered by globalization. What can a renewed or reconceptualized Orientalism teach us about the force and limits of our racial imaginary, specifically in relation to various national contexts? In what ways, for example, considering our greater cross-cultural interaction, have clichés and stereotypes undergone a metamorphosis in contemporary societies and cultures? Theoretically and empirically, this book offers an expansive range of contexts, comprising the insights, analytical positions and perspectives of a transnational team of scholars of comparative literature and literary and cultural studies, based in Australia, Hong Kong, Japan, Malaysia, USA, Singapore, Taiwan and Turkey. Working with, through and beyond Orientalism, they examine a variety of cultural texts, including the novel, short story, poetry, film, graphic memoir, social thought and life writing. Making connections across centuries and continents, they articulate cultural representation and discourse through multiple approaches, including critical content analysis, historical contextualization, postcolonial theory, gender theory, performativity, intertextuality and intersectionality. Given its unique approach, this book will be essential reading for scholars of literary theory, film studies and Asian studies, as well as for those with a general interest in postcolonial literature and film.

The Pleasures and Horrors of Eating Marion Gymnich, 2010-09-15 Browsing through books and TV channels, we find people preoccupied with eating, cooking and competing with chefs. Eating and food in today's media have become a form of entertainment and art. A survey of literary history and culture shows to what extent eating used to be closely related to all areas of human life, to religion, eroticism and even to death. In this volume, early modern ideas of feasting, banqueting and culinary pleasures are juxtaposed with post-18th and 19th century concepts in which the intake of food is increasingly subjected to moral, theological and economic reservations. In a wide range of essays, various images, rhetorics and poetics of plenty are not only contrasted with the horrors of gluttony; they are also seen in the context of modern phenomena such as the anorexic body or the gourmandizing bon te humaine. It is this vexing binary approach to eating and food which this volume traces within a wide chronological framework and which is at the core not only of literature, art and film, but also of a flourishing popular culture.
