Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 12-year-old children. The study was conducted in a primary school in the city of Istanbul. The study group consisted of 20 children who were randomly selected from the 12-year-old children in the school. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group did not receive any training, while the experimental group received a 12-week training program. The physical fitness of the children was measured at the beginning and at the end of the training program. The results of the study showed that the experimental group had significantly higher physical fitness levels than the control group at the end of the training program. The study suggests that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness of 12-year-old children.

Chlorides are also measured on the same apparatus, and all figures are given the last number zero.
