DEATH SPEAKS At night in winter when the snow flakes fall slowly from heaven like great white tears I raise my voice its resonance thrills the cypress trees and makes them bud anew I pause an instant in my swift course over earth throw myself down among cold tombs and while dark plumaged birds rise suddenly in terror from my side while the dead slumber peacefully while cypress branches droop low over my head while all around me weeps or lies in deep repose my burning eyes rest on the great white clouds gigantic winding sheets unrolling their slow length across the face of heaven How many nights and years and ages have I journeyed thus A witness of the universal birth and of a like decay Innumerable are the generations I have garnered with my scythe Like God I am eternal The nurse of Earth I cradle it each night upon a bed both soft and warm The same recurring feasts the same unending toil Each morning I depart each evening I return bearing within my mantle's ample folds all that my scythe has gathered And then I scatter them to the four winds of Heaven When the high billows run when the heavens weep and shrieking winds lash ocean into madness then in the turmoil and the tumult do I fling myself upon the surging waves and lo the tempest softly cradles me as in her hammock sways a queen The foaming waters cool my weary feet burning from bathing in the falling tears of countless generations that have clung to them in vain endeavour to arrest my steps
