Natalie Vellacott, 2014-10-22 A true story detailing how a Christian Police Sergeant from England boarded the Logos Hope Missionary Ship in 2011 and was forever changed when in the Philippines she unexpectedly encountered and fell in love with a group of street teenage boys addicted to a solvent called rugby The book details the highlights and lowlights ups and downs trials and tribulations successes and failures of the Logos Hope crew as they defied local attitudes to slowly and carefully befriend this sidelined and often detested minority You will read of hospital visitations breaches of trust criminal activity gang fights and numerous disappointments but ultimately you will read of the changes in the lives of just a few of the boys who decided to leave the street and the solvents for better future lives It goes without saying that these small changes made the heartache and struggles worthwhile A true story of Christian hope being brought to the hopeless in the Philippines As I approached the bridge leading back to the Logos Hope ship I saw a lone figure standing in the shadows watching the people walking past He was unsteady on his feet and rocking backwards and forwards holding a plastic bag in his hand As I moved nearer I saw it was Mark He ran away when he saw me and tried to hide but didn't get very far and so he sat on the ground behind a large pillar in the shadows breathing heavily I sat beside him on the ground which was dirty and really stank and when I put my arm around his shoulders I smelt the intoxicatingly strong smell of the solvent The boys had recently stopped taking rugby and had moved on to a door sealant called Vuca Seal which was stronger It was all over him and he reeked of it I covered my nose I remember this was the only time where the thought ran through my mind that I could see how addiction to this smell was created because it was really intoxicating I knew I needed to be careful not to breathe much of it in but Mark was really very high He was vacant and staring ahead and then he began crying again as I tried to talk to him I asked him why he was doing this to himself and what was it that had made him so unhappy but he didn't answer Mark got up and stumbled away as I watched him go I followed and tried to talk to him again sharing a bit of my life before I became a Christian and how miserable I had been His hopelessness reminded me of my old life when I was immersed in drink gambling and meaningless relationships I knew Mark was listening as I shared the hope that I had found in Jesus with him but he didn't respond Eventually I had to leave him alone and staring vacantly ahead of himself hanging over a railing I was really worried that he wouldn't make it through the night if he took any more solvents
