Ars Ingenero Quattuor David Cope, Alena, 2015-12-01 The fourth in a series of books providing beautifully captured images of David Cope's art Ars Ingenero Quattuordecim David Cope, 2016-12-25 In Latin ars ingenero means generative art Here the title refers to art produced from mathematical formulae Each of the following twenty six pictures derives from a program I call Alena Artificial Life Emerging from Natural Affinities The complex systems used to produce it develop self organizing behavior in the digital realm in many ways like the life we experience in the biological realm beginning simple and developing over quadrillions of generations producing a kind of evolution Thus these pictures do not represent CGI computer generated images as the term is usually meant CGI uses algorithms to achieve particular end results that could not be produced by non computational methods Generative art involves the emergence of unpredictable outcomes In other words outcomes over which I have little or no control except in choosing the starting conditions for their creation and picking the output I prefer to exhibit In essence this art originates from a computer rather than a computer acting as a tool to produce to a particular result Like any art visual or otherwise the images here are meant to evoke responses from viewers Like any art there exists no one to one correlation between intended and actual responses Some viewers of course will react predictably by predetermining them as senseless simply by knowing their process of creation They will decide that what they see results from random behavior even when the opposite is true Every color line and shape is completely determined David Cope
