Social and Critical Practice in Art Education Dennis Atkinson, Paul Dash, 2005 This book takes a new exciting and important approach to art It shows how children and older students can use art to explore personal social and cultural issues that touch their lives The book covers new ground responding as it does to the increasingly diverse nature of cities and to recent government initiatives worldwide to foster social inclusion and equality of opportunity and support active citizenship The contributors are art educators They write about their ways of engaging with contemporary art practice in their particular fields so as to encourage young people to acquire critical understanding They also challenge the pedagogies that perpetuate long established forms of art practice Tim Rollins writes about his work with disaffected youths in the Bronx and John Johnston describes work in art to bring communities together in Northern Ireland Other contributors include Toby Jackson head of interpretation at Tate Modern Diedre Prinz curator of the Robben Island museum in South Africa the 198 Gallery in south London and Viv Golding who works in museums and gallery education Sinath Bannerjee explores socio cultural issues in comic novels in India and Sue Lok explores identities through art practices Educators at each level also contribute to this groundbreaking book Andy Gower describes his innovative art practice in a secondary school and children of Room 13 in a Scottish primary school report on their organization of their own focus for art Lesley Burgess and Nick Addison give an account of their development of critical and social practices in art education at London s Institute of Education The book is for all those working in art education in museums and galleries schools and communities Contributor information Tim Rollins work in New York with Kids of Survival KOS has achieved world wide acclaim Beginning in the 1980s Rollins taught a highly disaffected group of teenagers in the Bronx and together they established an art workshop where members of the group produced challenging conceptual art work Subsequently work was sold and is now held in major galleries around the world Through their visual practices many members of the group overcame feelings of rejection and alienation and developed self assurance and confidence John Johnston works with the Protestant communities in Belfast and through the use of visual practices he has been working with young people in a variety of community sites to explore issues of identity This is a difficult educational challenge given the history of Northern Ireland Recently he has been invited to work in Lebanon at a human rights summer school He has been working with young people there to explore themes of home and belonging through visual practices Room 13 consists of a highly creative group of children at Caol Primary School near Fort William in Scotland The children are producing contemporary art which has received much interest and acclaim nationally and internationally The children run Room 13 as an entirely self funding business independent from the school Rob Fairley and Claire Gibb are the only adults involved they offer advice but they are not the children s teachers An elected committee of children makes all decisions about the work and the business Viv Golding is a lecturer in museum studies at Leicester University She uses the concept of museum clearing to counter the discourses of lack often a self fulfilling prophecy that frequently permeates much discussion of Black children and their under achievement in UK schools today The practical value of her critique is illustrated through a fieldwork project involving imaginative art and literacy school and museum work in south London with early years children Deidre Prins and her team work as education officers at Robben Island Museum in South Africa They provide some background to the work of the museum and introduce readers briefly to the legacy of creative forms used in the maximum security prison between 1960s and 1991 and the role it played in creating a process of normalization under conditions that were repressive and alienating A large part of the audiences of Robben Island Museum are children and youth All of them have no memory or experience of the colonial period in RSA history and very few of them have a memory or experience of apartheid These are two defining periods in the lives of all South Africans with the scars benefits and joys of a new democracy To create a dynamic learning environment in which children and youth can engage with a legacy which is at once painful and liberatory requires a process of making memory speaking about the past doing the past and understanding the past Their engagement with this past in turn creates their own memories and leaves its mark on Robben Island which is a living museum The theme of memory making will be described through the production of a photographic collage which is part of the annual Spring School activities 198 Gallery The team at the 198 Gallery write about their work on the Urban Visions scheme which is an outreach programme that deals with disaffected youth in south London Lucy Davies the chief administrator and other gallery staff will write about how their program has impacted on the learning experience of children from this diverse urban environment Many are excluded from schools or have learning difficulties which schools find difficult to address The gallery in its work across a range of media but more especially electronic media has earned the respect of many in educational and fine art circles both in this country and in mainland Europe Sue Lok is an artist and lecturer at Middlesex University She has a particular interest in the experience of Chinese British artists and young people Her work will explore themes central to their experience alongside issues emanating from her own experience as an artist and researcher Lesley Burgess and Nick Addison are art educators at the Institute of Education in London They have a nation wide reputation for their seminal publication Learning to Teach Art and Design in the Secondary School They have carried out further research in the arena of teacher education for this book Andy Gower is head of art at a north London comprehensive school He and his team have devised a way of teaching which is unique but very successful within the state system Their issues based approach extends across the year groups and encourages responses which address issues of personal social cultural and political concern The idea is not to focus greatly on the development of traditional skills in making art but in fostering a creative thinking environment in which children respond imaginatively and personally to issues which impact on their lives Sarnath is a comic artist he address issues through the graphic medium of comic imagery His work explores relationships and issues of exclusion both physical and psychological The ways in which his pieces unfurl encourage different interpretations and readings of what is being said It is an extraordinarily intense and challenging comic style which demands constant revisiting and re reading His chapter invites us to enter the world of a south Asian man whose thoughts drift in and out of different points of experience It takes us on a physical and psychological journey and depositis us in a space that begs more questions about identity and belonging Sarnath Banerjee has initiated a scheme in the south Asian community of Tower Hamlets in east London which will see Bengali women make comics about their lives and thoughts He is developing a similar scheme among a number of minority ethnic communities in the Brixton area of south London He is shortl

Reflective Practices in Arts Education Pamela Burnard, Sarah Hennessy, 2006-08-12 It is an exciting time to be an artist and artist educator Networks of schools and artists are being motivated by arts partnerships a relatively new phenomenon in a field which whilst disparate in its character and practice is marked by a common intention to respond effectively and critically to politically driven agendas of accountability school improvement and pupil attainment More than ever artists and educators alike have begun to realise the need to develop practices which offer the development of artist educator pedagogies as agencies for change and political action Understanding the function of reflective practice the conditions which s port it and its impact on learning are addressed throughout this book We hope that the book will motivate readers with a diversity of interests and needs to engage in reflections of their own professional practices and of the practices of the commu ties in which they work This book is about reflection The thesis about the field it covers and major premise of this book is that reflection matters at every turn in arts engagement and even more so in educational settings where artist educators share a passion for facilitating and understanding the how of learners engagement with p ticular art forms It aims to show ways in which reflection can inform and transform practice in terms of what when and how reflection is embodied in arts engagement African Caribbean Pupils in Art Education Paul Dash, 2010-01-01 This book deals with the issue of African Caribbean pupil invisibility in the art and design classroom As such it addresses African Caribbean pupil invisibility in almost any teaching and learning context The book argues that the slave trade which ruptured their continuities with an African past continues to impact on the learning of such pupils relative to others In seeking to explicate this matter the book places African Caribbean pupils in the wider context of African Caribbean and Western cultural identities Just where do they belong To address this matter it calls on the theorising of thinkers with an interest in identity construction learning and belonging particularly with reference to the Caribbean The book is organised in three sections the first presents the rationale for the enquiry the second outlines the outcome from a small research project with a focus on African Caribbean learners in the art and design classroom and the third reflects on key issues that emerged from the research in relation to the rationale The book ends by offering possibilities for developing African Caribbean teaching and learning in art and design African Caribbean Pupils in Art Education is very erudite and the centre of a world of reference and allusion Dash relates its arguments and insights to many different writers and contexts These will lead readers to many other writers and their arguments in related fields of study personalised research interviews with teachers and students adds realism and close to the bone insight to the points Dash makes These interviews are not academised and made tedious or uninteresting but real life and real classroom and curriculum issues come out clearly and undisguisedly in the subjects words Many of their points are full of meaning and lucidity and add more power to Dash s arguments Thus the book will be of real value to prospective teachers and teacher educators too as a tool of learning and a stimulus for discussion The book goes a long way beyond only being a text for Art Education students It s arguments have salience for all Educationalists and trainee teachers as well as for staffrooms in Britain and North America Canada and the U S for example It deals with vital questions both for African Caribbean students and their white and Asian classmates canvassing issues of intellectual and cultural confidence for African Caribbean students and historical and contemporary truth for others Chris Searle Director of the Ahmed Iqbal Ullah Race Relations Resource Centre at the University of Manchester Youth Identities, Localities, and Visual Material Culture

Kristen Ali Eglinton, 2012-10-05 This invaluable addition to Springer s Explorations of Educational Purpose series is a revelatory ethnographic account of the visual material culture of contemporary youths in North America The author s detailed study follows apparently dissimilar groups black and Latino a in a New York City after school club and white and Indigenous in a small Canadian community as they inflect their nascent identities with a sophisticated sense of visual material culture in today s globalized world It provides detailed proof of how much ethnography can add to what we know about young people s development in addition to its potential as a model to explore new and significant avenues in pedagogy Supported by a wealth of ethnographic evidence the analysis tracks its subjects responses to strikingly diverse material ranging from autobiographical accounts by rap artists to the built environment It shows how young people from the world s cultural epicenter just like their counterparts in the sub Arctic construct racial geographic and gender identities in ways that are subtly responsive to what they see around them blending localized characteristics with more widely shared visual references that are now universally accessible through the Web The work makes a persuasive case that youthful engagement with visual material culture is a relational and productive activity that is simultaneously local and global at once constrained and enhanced by geography and possesses a potent and life affirming authenticity Densely interwoven with young people s perspectives the author s account sets out an innovative and interdisciplinary conceptual framework affording fresh insights into how today s youth assimilate what they perceive to be significant Supported by a wealth of ethnographic evidence the analysis tracks its subjects responses to strikingly diverse material ranging from autobiographical accounts by rap artists to the built environment It shows how young people from the world s cultural epicenter just like their counterparts in the sub Arctic construct racial geographic and gender identities in ways that are subtly responsive to what they see around them blending localized characteristics with more widely shared visual references that are now universally accessible through the Web The work makes a persuasive case that youthful engagement with visual material culture is a relational and productive activity that is simultaneously local and global at once constrained and enhanced by geography and possesses a potent and life affirming authenticity Densely interwoven with young people s perspectives the author s account sets out an innovative and interdisciplinary conceptual framework affording fresh insights into how today s youth assimilate what they perceive to be significant
