

Animals

Animals are organisms that can move from place to place. They are able to find food and shelter on their own. They are also able to reproduce and care for their young.

Animals are found in all parts of the world. They live in the oceans, on land, and in the air. They are part of the natural world and play a role in the ecosystem.

Animals are important to humans in many ways. They provide us with food, clothing, and entertainment. They also help us to understand the natural world and ourselves.
