on the automobile and how its potential impact on urban design will either make or break our health economy and quality of life In this thought provoking work author and urban planning expert Chad Frederick scrutinizes the use of automobiles in cities investigating its role in exacerbating urban inequalities and thwarting sustainability of modern society Through a comprehensive thoughtful discussion Frederick illustrates how the automobile is fundamentally at odds with the very nature of cities He shows how cars impose huge burdens on our health equity environment local and national economy and quality of life Most of all he shows how automobile dependency has put our entire society at risk The book delves into the monumental role of automobiles in the development of cities after the Great Depression impacting the American identity and affecting the way we produce and manage urban spaces Frederick provides compelling evidence that cities with more diverse modes of transportation are greener healthier more prosperous and even more enjoyable places to live than automobile dependent cities He identifies one institution responsible for our inability to improve our cities the social sciences and examines the root cause of our inability to make progress toward more multi modal cities In conclusion the author offers a radical solution for moving beyond the underlying logic that forces us to create automobile dependent cities
