Jungle Combat with the 112th Cavalry Robert Peyton Wiggins, 2014-01-10 This narrative tracks the experiences of three veterans while providing a comprehensive account of Troop G activities during the war years The text follows the regiment from its time as mounted cavalry based in Fort Clark to New Caledonia where the men gave up their horses to become infantrymen in General Douglas MacArthur's conquest of New Guinea and the Philippines Never as famous as the federalized infantrymen of the Texas 36th the men of the 112th have often been overlooked in discussions of World War II and this text seeks to restore them to their rightful place in the history of the Pacific theater operations Sniper at Monte Cassino: "Sometimes I hear them still screaming." W. T. Wallenda, 2024-06-05 Sometimes I can still hear them screaming Josef Altmann said more than 50 years after the Battle of Monte Cassino lost in thought He instinctively flinched ducked to the side apparently seeking cover from an imaginary approaching shell As a member of Regiment 361 the former foreign legionnaire witnessed the merciless fighting on the Gustav Line and around Monte Cassino The war had reached an unimaginable level of cruelty and death struck mercilessly every day Altmann was quickly trained as a sniper and immediately sent to the front He recognizes the faces of his victims through the telescopic sight His hands start to shake his heart races Goose bumps covered his body Fear misery the loss of his closest comrades and the screams of the dying made him pull the trigger despite his initial doubts Josef Altmann tells his story without pathos free of heroism and frighteningly close to reality This book is an unflinching factual account and should serve as a memorial against war Full Smite James Lewis, 2023-08-02
