A Parisienne in Chicago Madame Léon Grandin, 2010 This fascinating account of a French woman's impressions of America in the late nineteenth century reveals an unusual cross cultural journey through fin de siècle Paris Chicago and New York Madame Leon Grandin's travels and extended stay in Chicago in 1893 were the result of her husband's collaboration on the fountain sculpture for the World's Columbian Exposition Initially impressed with the city's fast pace and architectural grandeur Grandin's attentions were soon drawn to its social and cultural customs reflected as observations in her writing During a ten month interval as a resident she was intrigued by the interactions between men and women mothers and their children teachers and students and other human relationships especially noting the comparative social freedoms of American women After this interval of acclimatization the young Parisian socialite had begun to view her own culture and its less liberated mores with considerable doubt I had tasted the fruit of independence of intelligent activity and was revolted at the idea of assuming once again the passive and inferior role that awaited me she wrote Grandin's curiosity and interior access to Chicago's social and domestic spaces produced an unusual travel narrative that goes beyond the usual tourist reactions and provides a valuable resource for readers interested in late nineteenth century America Chicago and social commentary Significantly her feminine views on American life are in marked contrast to parallel reflections on the culture by male visitors from abroad It is precisely the dual narrative of this text the simultaneous recounting of a foreigner's impressions and the consequent questioning of her own cultural certainties that make her book unique This translation includes an introductory essay by Arnold Lewis that situates Grandin's account in the larger context of European visitors to Chicago in the 1890s

Merry Wives and Others Penelope Fritzer, Bartholomew Bland, 2010-06-28 In many ways the history of domestic humor writing is also a history of domestic life in the twentieth century For many years domestic humor was written primarily by females significant contributions from male writers began as times and family structures changed It remains timeless because of its basis on the relationships between husbands and wives parents and children houses and inhabitants pets and their owners chores and their doers and neighbors This work is a historical and literary survey of humorists who wrote about home It begins with a chapter on the social context of and attitudes toward traditional domestic roles and housewives The following chapters beginning with the 1920s and continuing through today cover the different time periods and the foremost American domestic humorists and the humor written by surrogate parents grown children about their childhood families husbands and Canadian and English writers Also covered are the differences among various writers toward traditional domestic roles some like Erma Bombeck and Judith Viorst embraced them while others like Caryl Kristenson and Marilyn Kentz resisted them Common themes such as the isolation and competitiveness of housework home as an idealized metaphysical goal and ongoing physical challenge and the urban suburban and rural life are also explored

Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking Jessamyn Neuhaus, 2003-07-28 From the first edition of The Fannie Farmer Cookbook to the latest works by today's celebrity chefs cookbooks reflect more than just passing culinary fads As historical artifacts they offer a unique perspective on the cultures that produced them In Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking Jessamyn Neuhaus offers a perceptive and piquant analysis of the tone and content of American cookbooks published between the 1790s and the 1960s adroitly uncovering the cultural assumptions and anxieties particularly about women and domesticity they contain Neuhaus's in depth survey of these cookbooks questions the supposedly straightforward lessons about food preparation they imparted While she finds that cookbooks aimed to make readers mainly white middle class women into effective modern age homemakers who saw joy not drudgery in their domestic tasks she notes that the phenomenal popularity of Peg Bracken's 1960 cookbook The I Hate to Cook Book attests to the limitations of this kind of indoctrination At the same time she explores the proliferation of bachelor cookbooks aimed at the man in the kitchen and the biases they display about male and female abilities tastes and responsibilities Neuhaus also addresses the impact of World War II rationing on homefront cuisine the introduction of new culinary technologies gourmet sensibilities and ethnic foods into American kitchens and developments in the cookbook industry since the 1960s More than a history of the cookbook Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking provides an absorbing and enlightening account of gender and food in modern America
