Rezension zu David Mura's "Turning Japanese Memoirs of a Sansei" Stephanie Wössner, 2009-11-13 Literature Review from the year 2003 in the subject American Studies Literature grade B San Francisco State University Ethnic Studies course AAS 833 Asian American Family and Identity language English abstract In his book Turning Japanese Memoirs of a Sansei David Mura writes about his one year long stay in Japan the country of his ancestors He talks about how this experience has changed his view on his own country the United States and Japan He writes in a postmodernist way juxtaposing fragments of text dating back to different points in time Some were written during his actual stay in Japan with several pieces looking back at his and his family's past and some were written after his stay when putting together his novel The former look back at the United States from Japan the latter look back to Japan from the United States Postmodernism is also an element in so far as the author uses a lot of irony and as it becomes clear how futile his efforts of finding his own identity are In this existentialist search for who he is Mura jumps back and forth in place and time However I had the feeling that the insights he arrives at with his writing are derived from only very few passages In other words these insights are framed by many useless pieces of text which kind of made me feel lost in a nebulous sphere in between the past and the present Japan and the United States

Rewriting Germany from the Margins Petra Fachinger, 2001 The margins in Petra Fachinger's work are occupied largely by second generation migrant writers from Spain Italy and Turkey German Jewish writers of diverse ethnic origins and writers born in the GDR She demonstrates that during the 1980s and 1990s writers from various cultural backgrounds engaged in oppositional discourse to construct their own version of Germany and write back to the German canon While most studies of texts by minority writers in Germany favour content over form Fachinger focuses on identifying counter discursive strategies and applies postcolonial theory concerned with textual resistance to the German situation In doing so this study effectively relates marginal writing in Germany to similar forms of writing in other national and cultural contexts The oppositional impulse whether manifested in counter canonical discourse postcolonial picaresque hybridity rewriting of genre or grotesque realism is prompted by the exclusionary politics of the dominant culture The discursive strategies used by the authors discussed to rewrite Germany expose the assumptions that underlie German public discourse and destabilise notions of Germanness Jewishness and Turkishness Fachinger's reading of texts by marginal writers in Germany all of whom endeavour to resist marginalisation while simultaneously experiencing or even celebrating the margin as a site of empowerment was motivated by the absence of comparative studies of such writing Rewriting Germany from the Margins demonstrates the necessity and usefulness of comparative approaches to minority discourses across national and cultural borders The World Next Door Rajini Srikanth, 2004 This book grows out of the question At this particular moment of tense geopolitics and inter linked economies what insights can South Asian American writing offer us about living in the world South Asian American literature with its focus on the multiple geographies and histories of the global dispersal of

Asian American Poets Guiyou Huang,2002-05-30 Even though Asian American literature is enjoying an impressive critical popularity attention has focused primarily on longer narrative forms such as the novel And despite the proliferation of a large number of poets of Asian descent in the 20th century Asian American poetry remains a neglected area of study Poetry as an elite genre has not reached the level of popularity of the novel or short story partly due to the difficulties of reading and interpreting poetic texts The lack of criticism on Asian American poetry speaks to the urgent need for scholarship in this area since perhaps more than any other genre poetry most forcefully captures the intense feelings and emotions that Asian Americans have experienced about themselves and their world This reference book overviews the tremendous cultural contributions of Asian American poets Included are alphabetically arranged entries on 48 American poets of Asian descent most of whom have been active during the latter half of the 20th century Each entry begins with a short biography which sometimes includes information drawn from personal interviews The entries then discuss the poet s major works and themes including such concerns as family racism sexism identity language and politics A survey of the poet s critical reception follows In many cases the existing criticism is scant and the entries offer new readings of neglected works The entries conclude with bibliographies of primary and secondary texts and the volume closes with a selected general bibliography

The Children of 1965 Min Hyoung Song, 2013-04-15 Since the 1990s a new cohort of Asian American writers has garnered critical and popular attention Many of its members are the children of Asians who came to the United States after the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965 lifted long standing restrictions on immigration This new generation encompasses writers as diverse as the graphic novelists Adrian Tomine and Gene Luen Yang the short story writer Nam Le and the poet Cathy Park Hong Having scrutinized more than one hundred works by emerging Asian American authors and having interviewed several of these writers Min Hyoung Song argues that collectively these works push against existing ways of thinking about race even as they demonstrate how race can facilitate creativity Some of the writers eschew their identification as ethnic writers while others embrace it as a means of tackling the uncertainty that many people feel about the near future In the literature that they create a number of the writers that Song discusses take on pressing contemporary matters such as demographic change environmental catastrophe and the widespread sense that the United States is in national decline
