Unit Cohesion and Warfare in the Ancient World Joshua R. Hall,Louis Rawlings,Geoff Lee,2023-03-24 This book explores unit cohesion in ancient armies and how this contributed to the making of war in the Mediterranean world It takes a varied approach to the subject from looking at individual groups within larger armies to juxtaposing vertical and horizontal types of cohesion providing a more detailed understanding of how groups were kept together Within the broader definition of unit cohesion this volume approaches more specific aspects of military cohesion in the ancient Mediterranean world including how individual soldiers commit to one another how armies and units are maintained through hierarchy and the chain of command and social cohesion in which social activities and aspects of social power help bind an army or unit together Examples from across the ancient Mediterranean are explored in this volume from Classical Greece to Late Antiquity with topics such as how armies and units cohere during the sacking of cities Roman standards as a focus of religious cohesion and how the multi ethnic mercenary armies of Carthage cohered Modern approaches to social cohesion are deployed throughout and these essays serve as an important complement to existing literature on unit cohesion more generally Unit Cohesion and Warfare in the Ancient World is of interest to students and scholars of ancient warfare military history and military studies as well as those working on the ancient Mediterranean world more broadly

Cartesian Currents in the Calculus of Variations II Mariano Giaquinta,Guiseppe Modica,Jiri Soucek,2013-03-14 Non scalar variational problems appear in different fields In geometry for instance we encounter the basic problems of harmonic maps between Riemannian manifolds and of minimal immersions related questions appear in physics for example in the classical theory of a models Non linear elasticity is another example in continuum mechanics while Oseen Frank theory of liquid crystals and Ginzburg Landau theory of superconductivity require to treat variational problems in order to model quite complicated phenomena Typically one is interested in finding energy minimizing representatives in homology or homotopy classes of maps minimizers with prescribed topological singularities topological charges stable deformations i e minimizers in classes of diffeomorphisms or extremal fields In the last two or three decades there has been growing interest knowledge and understanding of the general theory for this kind of problems often referred to as geometric variational problems Due to the lack of a regularity theory in the non scalar case in contrast to the scalar one or in other words to the occurrence of singularities in vector valued minimizers often related with concentration phenomena for the energy density and because of the particular relevance of those singularities for the problem being considered the question of singling out a weak formulation or completely understanding the significance of various weak formulations becomes non trivial
